RINGING APPEAL IS
MADE BY PINCHOT
FOR LAW OBEDIENCETells District Attorneys
"Either We Are a Self
Governing People or a Race of Weaklings".

COMMENDS BUTLER

By VIN D. SWEENEY
Harrisburg, Aug. 22 (INS).—Calling
upon them to drive bootleggers and
saloon from Pennsylvania, Governor
Pinchot urged the use of three weapons in enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment today as he opened the
law enforcement conference with more
than fifty district attorneys of the State.Speedy trials, jail sentences and the use of the injunction were the weapons urged upon the district attorneys
in combating the "creeping anarchy
which has been more assisted and encouraged by the open violation of the Eighteenth Amendment than by all the other causes put together."The Governor stressed the need for jailing the liquor law violators, saying
that a fine was merely a new form of
high license that enabled the law-
breaker to avoid real punishment and
to resume his illicit trade.Charging that the Federal laxity
in enforcing the laws has made the
problem more difficult, the Governor
asked vigorous and coordinated action
on the part of the police, the district
attorneys and the courts to "vindicate
the Constitution of our country in the State where it was born."The Governor's speech to the district attorneys reads:
"The people of this Commonwealth
and of the whole country are face to face with the vital need for suppres-
sing a dangerous attack upon the Constitution and the laws of the United States. This attack is made from the lowest motives and has behind it every corrupt and criminal force in every community. It is the most threatening and most serious social order ever made out of the ruins of a decent American nation which does not stand squarely for law enforcement."
"Either we are a self-governing

American world flyers, Lieut.
Lowell Smith and Lieut. Erik Nelson on their hop off from Iceland for Greenland, was missing today. American war-craft were ordered to search
the sea for him.On Board U. S. Cruiser Richmond,
Aug. 22. (By Wireless to I. N. S.).— Having completed the longest and
most perilous leg of their great world
flying flight, Lieut. Lowell Smith
and Lieut. Erik Nelson were resting
today at Frederiksdal, Greenland.
They completed the 825 mile jump
from Reykjavik, Iceland, shortly after 8 o'clock last night, taking more than 12 hours for the long hop across the northernmost fringe of the Atlantic Ocean.Lieut. Locatelli, the Italian flyer,
who left Reykjavik with the Americans,
got separated from them during the flight. In the early stages of the journey, the Italian was leading.
According to a wireless, Lieut. Nelson made a landing of a few minutes
at Skerjavik, 65 miles south of Reykjavik but caught up with his colleague, Smith, after taking the air
again.Weather conditions were good.
The next jump of the flight will take
them to Labrador, the mainland of the North American continent.
The American machines stood the long night admirably. It was the most severe test they had stood, as the
flight was several hundred miles more
than the original plans called for.
During part of the trip the airmen
encountered cross-winds which put a
big strain upon the planes.BODY OF HARRISBURG

He Is Most Wonderful
Boy In All The WorldLos Angeles, Aug. 22. (INS).—To Greenland's icy mountains from a rose-covered cottage is a long "hop," but
a message of motherly love made that journey today when Mrs. Maud H.
Smith, of Los Angeles, learned her son, Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, commander of the American round-the-world flyers, had safely landed in Frederiksdal."I just know Lowell can feel how happy I am," said Mrs. Smith when told her son was safely across the icy seas."Oh, I'm so proud of him. The wonderful, wonderful boy."
"All the world is talking about him
today and my heart is ringing because he's my son. I can hardly wait
for him to get back home. I am greatly relieved for I was worried
about this last jump they made. Yes,
you can tell everyone I'm the happiest
mother in America and very, very proud today."Both Mrs. Smith and the Lieutenant's father, James, an engineer, were disappointed that he didn't reach here
for the wedding of his sister Frances,
who was married last night to Louis
H. Hollander, a young medical student of Los Angeles.Coal Men Silent on Result

the Association of Bituminous Coal Operators, who met yesterday in combined conference at headquarters in this city to thresh out problems bearing on conditions in the local coal fields, were silent following the meeting as to what had been done during the session.They stated they had given thorough discussion to working conditions, freight rates and the scale of wages now prevailing and that action
had been taken on each, but refused to make public the nature of this action.Charles O'Neill, secretary of the Central Pennsylvania association, said
at the close of the conference that nothing would be said verbally for a day or two. He added that he will prepare a written statement soon for publication.The conference was in charge of President B. M. Clark, of Indiana, and was attended by directors Rembrandt

RIVALRY IS KEEN

By H. S. NIGHTINGALE
(Progress Staff Correspondent)
Greensburg, Pa., Aug. 22.—Green-
burg opened its arms to the Clearfield
Expeditionary Force at 11:30 last evening when the Pennsy special bearing
the "army" and the Legion Band,
which was picked up at Cresson, after
its triumphant and victorious siege of Patton, rolled in to the station.The advance barrage laid down by the Clearfield Legionnaires was very effective as there was a great crowd
on hand to see the shock troops from Clearfield and hear the band they had heard so much about. It was only a short march to the Penn Albert hotel,
where the troops are garrisoned. On arrival there most of the boys hit the
hay, but slumber was difficult and
much disturbed.An order has been posted by the
M. P. prohibiting any blowing of horns until sunrise. Imagine our surprise when at about four o'clock
this morning a patrol visited our section, rudely placed "Doc" Leopold under arrest and chucked him in the
guard house on a charge of tootin' a horn before the sun got up the hill. The fellow who lodged the complaint said

Many Outlying Towns
Are Organizing Baby
Clinics For This FallState Nurse Miss Florence M. Gracie,
who is in charge of the Tuberculosis Clinic maintained by the State Department of Health in Clearfield, is assisting in extending the activities of the health department of the state in Clearfield county.On August 7th Miss Miller, of Harrisburg, organizer for the Child Welfare Department of the State Department of Health, with the assistance of Miss Gracie, held a "Well Baby Clinic" at Ansonville, at which time 36
babies or children up to six years of
age, were present for examination.
The children were brought to the
clinic from McCartney, Lumber City,
Kerrinor, Berwindale and all the villages surrounding Ansonville. Among
the defects discovered in the tots were
flat feet, enlarged tonsils and adenoids, rickets and malnutrition. Some of the mothers thought their babies in perfect health until informed of the actual condition and advised by the
state nurses to take the little people
to their family physicians for treatment.So successful was the clinic and so
great the interest among the mothers
of the region that it was decided to establish a regular monthly baby clinic at Ansonville. The president or doctor in charge will be Dr. B. G.
Learn, who is much interested and
who gave invaluable co-operation and
service at the initial clinic. Mrs. B.
G. Learn, Miss Strong and Postmaster
Victor Miller also rendered unselfish
and highly appreciated service to the state nurses on this occasion.On August 19th Miss Gracie held a Well Baby Clinic at Mahaffey where 17 babies were examined and the usual minor physical defects found, all of which might develop into major difficulties if not corrected by intelligent medical care and treatment now.
Dr. J. Frank Rowles is president of the Mahaffey baby clinic, which will also be a monthly event hereafter.A "Well Baby Day" is scheduled for Grampian on Wednesday, August 27th and the state nurse would like to have all the babies and children up to six years of age in that section present for examination at that time.New York, Aug. 22 (INS).—Social Reilly was called for at the hotel where the couple are registered. He said he was not the bridegroom and said "consult the San Francisco news-

was.
Reilly's appearance suggests an age
of between 60 and 70.

OVER DAWES PLAN
OPENED UP TODAYBy S. D. WEYER
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
Berlin, Aug. 22.—The decisive battle in the Reichstag over ratification
of the Dawes reparation plan agreement opened today with the bitterest
debate in prospect."Dissolution and a plebiscite," were
the heavy guns brought forward
by the government's artillery. Chancellor Marx, Foreign Secretary Stre-
semann, and Dr. Luther, the government's most experienced gunner, led
the fight against the anti-Dawes
forces—German nationalists, ultra-rightists, and communists—who have become uncommon comrades in a common cause.Marx, Stresemann and Luther maintain that rejection of the Dawes plan
would mean economic collapse for the Ruhr industries, prolongation of the
sufferings of the populations in occupied zones and a bar to resumption of negotiations with the allies.

FIRE AT OLANTA

A dwelling house situated at Olanta
and owned by Harry Cathcart, but occupied by Warren Rhodes and family,
was badly damaged by fire about 8
o'clock last evening. The fire originated on the second floor from an undetermined origin and had quite a start when discovered.A party of men returning from the New Millport picnic, happened along
in time to lend valuable aid in subdu-
ing the flames which were confined to
the upper floor.
The loss will amount to several hundred dollars.Philip Robinson, of Atlantic City, is visiting local relatives at present.CAPITAL EMPLOYEE

THE LOSS IS $35,000

The Riverview Works of the Clear-
field Fire Brick Company, located
along the Clearfield-Curwensville State
road, about one-half mile beyond the Clearfield borough line, was burned
down by a fire which started in the roof of the boiler room about 3:30
o'clock this morning.The "out of town" fire alarm was sounded when the fire was discovered
and the firemen, who had returned on
their special train from the Patton
convention about one hour previous,
rolled out of bed and were soon upon
the scene.The plant being out of the borough
handicapped the firemen in their efforts to save the building. The steamer was quickly taken to the scene
but on account of the condition of the
river bank near the brick works it
was impossible to get the big machine
close enough to the river to get water.
An effort was made to operate the
engine from the floor of the Riverview
bridge, but the distance to the water
was too great and the pump could not
lift the water.The boiler house, which was frame,
was entirely consumed, as was the entire roof of the main building or plant
proper, while the brick sidewalks were
warped and cracked and considerably
damaged by the heat.The cause of the fire was not exactly determined but Glen Lannon, one of
the night men who discovered the fire,
is of the opinion it was caused by the
electric wiring as it appeared to have
started under the roof and at a point
where it was impossible for a spark or
fire to get otherwise.The loss will probably reach $35,000,
which is pretty well covered by insurance.The plant employed about 60 men
and had been running full time for
some time. A. D. Bigler, President,
and General Manager of the Clearfield
Brick Company announced this morning that the plant would be rebuilt
at once and workmen are already engaged in clearing away the debris preparatory to starting the rebuilding.

LANGFORD BOYS DOING WELL

Mine Supt. Thomas Langford was up from his home at Surveyor today
to see his sons John and Clair, both of whom are patients at the Rowles sanitarium suffering from injuries received in rock falls at the Goshen Coal Company mine at Surveyor one day
last week.Mr. Langford found his boys both improving nicely. Clair has his broken ankle in a cast and will be able to go home as soon as his crushed foot
improves a little more.John, who had his back broken, is also in a satisfactory condition considering the serious nature of his injuries. His leg muscles began to regular yesterday and Dr. Stewart, who
is caring for him, entertains more
hope for his ultimate complete recovery from his injury.Born, this morning to Mrs. Walter

ALL HAD FINE TIME

The Clearfield Fire Department arrived home from the Central District
convention at Patton on their special
train this morning about 2:30 o'clock,
a tired but extremely happy bunch,
not over half of whose joy was liqui-
fied. But what can you expect of a real fireman's convention, and that Patton convention was that.The principal reason for the yard-
wide smiles on the faces of Chief Kreher and his aides was because the
local department swept the deck clean
by capturing every prize they went
after.First and foremost was the grabbing off of the largest single prize of
the convention, the $150 first prize in
the band contest, which was decided
last evening. Clearfield's justly famous American Legion Band bringing
home the bacon by finishing away out
in front of all competitors. In addition to winning the band contest, the Clearfield band was also given the $15
cash prize for the snappiest march
and best appearing band in line of parade, during the big parade in the morning.The Elt's Hose Company had their fine new combination hose and chemical wagon along and they also romped
away with the $50 cash prize for
the piece of motor fire apparatus coming the longest distance to the convention.Further honors came to the Clear-
field Fire Department, when its veteran member W. B. Holmes, was awarded $10 in cash for being the oldest
fireman in point of actual service.
Bro. Holmes was a member of Company No. 1 when that company was first organized in September, 1881.He has remained a member of that company through all the intervening
years and is annually chosen to the position of Steward, and functions on
the job. In addition to being the veteran of the Clearfield Department,
Bro. Holmes has the added distinction
of being the only colored member of
the State Firemen's Association, he
having represented his company as a delegate to the Butler convention several years ago.The drill team of Rescue Hose Company of Curwensville added further
to their reputation as the best drilled
company in Central Pennsylvania by
easily walking away with the $75 first prize in the prize drill. The Cur-wensville boys, under the direction of Chief Geo. L. Benner, drilled with the precision of trained soldiers and easily
out-striped all competitors. They received a continuous ovation along the route of parade for their splendid
marching formations.The American Legion Band, decked
and groomed for Greensburg, took the Patton people by storm and was the
"big hit" of the convention.
Clearfield firemen were royally
treated at Patton and came home loud
in their praises of Patton firemen and
the townspeople generally.New Star Shines In World

Winner Of $5 This WeekThis week's coloring contest award is unique in that the winner is only eleven years of age. And the work done on the coloring page is really fine even for a person of more mature years.Miss Margaret Jane Gearhart, age 11, is the winner of first prize and it was the unanimous verdict of the judges that she had the best page for the week. Miriam Boyd comes along with a mighty fine page and cops second prize. Bessie Baker, of Woodland, winner of last week's contest, was
awarded third prize while Fred Livingston was given fourth prize.Tickets to the Liberty Theatre were awarded to Norma Davis, Harry Zeigler, Myrtle Lames, Mable Wallace, Earl Stine, Wanda Brown, Allan Peck, Zoe Shirey, Woodward Peoples.

Post No. 6

the noise sounded like a dirge being played on a bass horn. That explained it. Prof. Thayer explained that was only Doc snoring, and although sentence had been passed that Doc be shot at sunrise, he was given his liberty and directed to be half shot by sunset, so he couldn't snore tonight.

The convention opened at ten o'clock today after the Legion Band had been given the honor of escorting the state colors to the convention hall. Immediately after the opening formalities, cups for the posts having made the greatest increases in membership were awarded. Commander J. Mitchell Chase of Clearfield, in a neat little speech accepted the cup given to John Lewis Shade Post No. 6, giving the credit for the success of the drive to the members of the Post. Cups were also awarded to Leechburg, Latrobe, Erie and McKeesport.

Erie was selected as the place for the 1925 convention. The tone of the convention points to the acceptance of our man Chase for Commander of the Department of Pennsylvania but rivalry is keen and there is some spirited electioneering from a dozen angles in progress every hour. Chase's principal opponent seems to be Arthur I. Boilin, of Reading, while L. M. Krumm of Washington, Pa., is touted as a compromise candidate. Brig. Gen. Shannon of Lancaster is also in the running.

Clearfield is very much in evidence all over the city and local papers this morning spoke in the highest terms of the invading army from the banks of the Susquehanna.

Convention Notes.

"Pop" Wilson's smiling face is very much missed among the civilian attaches at the convention.

The convention itself, is fraught with the usual petty bickerings over details of many things which interest only the Legionnaires.

The casualties during the convention are: Clearfield Army, which has been in the city since the 15th.

The "Punch" boasted gobblers were being served by the army on the 15th and 16th.

The Legion Band is making its usual appearance as well as the Legion band, which will play at the annual picnic tonight in the city park.

A S. J. (S. J.) hunker, whose music was played at the Clearfield delegation during the greater portion of the convention, was treated to an ice bath and a water pitcher.

The Clearfield band has again been awarded the honor of playing at the annual picnic. The local band of the Clearfield Legion has been relieved of the duty of playing at the Clearfield picnic.

BASEBALL DOPE

DuBois defeated Philipsburg at Scott Field on Wednesday 7 to 3 and thereby gained a half game on Clearfield, the League leaders. Our own got that half game back by their victory over Osceola and remain three full games in the lead.

Philipsburg makes its first appearance at the local ball park tomorrow in more than a month. Our own are looking for a hard game as Fauver, Cowdick, Robinson, McCloskey, Rowles and one or two others of the regulars will be out of the lineup because they are attending the Greensburg convention.

Osceola will play here again on Monday.

The Philipsburg team will appear in Clearfield again on next Tuesday, when they play a double-header with the locals. The local management, which is in need of funds, plan to make Tuesday a "booster day" and would like to have all the fans show their appreciation of the kind of ball the locals have played this year by turning out to this game. The first game will start at 2:00 p.m. sharp.

Tastes in Sweets

Blonds of Sweden prefer to eat light-colored syrups while people of darker complexions favor sweets of more somber tints.

Held Many High Offices

James Buchanan, President of the United States from 1857 to 1861, held many prominent posts before he was elected Chief Executive. He had been congressman, senator, secretary of state, and minister to Great Britain.

Unpopular Qualities

If the people get to think of you as a man who knows how to do nothing but scold and criticize and find fault they will soon get sick of you.—George F. Hoar.

Office Slogan

If "dictated but not read" is a good businesslike slogan for the head of the house, what's the matter with "added but not balanced" for the cashier, or "stamped but not mailed" for the office boy?—Les.

Another Scheme

A feminine voice was heard from the steps of a crowded car: "Oh, get in, dear, some one will give you a seat." The next moment two young women entered. The men in the car were on their mettle. They read papers sternly. Those who had no papers closed their eyes and pretended to slumber. The too-certain women glanced down the car in vain. The car went on for half a mile, and then a man alighted. "There's a seat for one," said the conductor. "Don't take it, dear," said one of the young women, "some man will want it." In the moment of defeat she triumphed.

SURPRISE PASTOR CRUTHERS

Rev. and Mrs. Cruthers were very pleasantly surprised Wednesday evening when a group of church workers dropped in on them after the Prayer Service for a social hour. A very enjoyable hour was passed, refreshments served and then another surprise in the form of a purse was presented to Rev. Cruthers before the happy crowd left for their homes.

Man may not exactly love his enemies. He has only got far enough along the ethical pathway to make them profitable.

Lake Far Below Sea

The deepest hollow known in the lands of the world is the one in Palestine at the bottom of which lies the Dead sea. The hollow containing this salt lake is actually 1,300 feet below the level of the sea.

Long Lapse of Memory

One of the most famous examples of official oversight occurred in connection with Drury Lane theater, where for nearly two centuries soldiers stood on guard outside during each performance. Many thought the guard was there in recognition of Drury Lane as the theater royal, but the real fact was that it was sent there originally by George II. to prevent a threatened riot. The order not being countermanded, the guard was continued until 1894.—London Times.

Generation of Crabs, Etc.

Crabs produce large quantities of eggs, which the female carries about with her attached to her hindmost pair of legs, until they hatch. The details vary much, of course, with the different kinds of crabs. The minute eggs (or spawn) of clams (those of salt water) are found out in early warm weather in great abundance, and at the same season the water near shore is filled with male sperm (milt). Thus by good luck a few eggs meet with the fertilizing particles. These soon "hatch" into a small larva, that swim about for a time, then settle down, acquire shells, and become baby clams, growing to full size and breeding condition in three or four years.

Indians First Anthracite Miners

Indians were the first anthracite miners. In the year 1750 a party of Indians brought a load of coal to a gunsmith near Nazareth, Pa. It is said, and offered it as payment for necessary repairs on their guns. The smith had difficulty in burning this coal in his forge. It was the first anthracite he had ever used. Almost 25 years passed before anthracite was mined in appreciable quantities by white men. The Indians were able to carry all the coal they mined on their backs. In 1920, however, enough coal was produced in the United States to load 12,000,000 50-ton freight cars.

Mrs. Love's Mean Trick

A new boy came to our school and I soon let him know that I was his for the asking. But he never asked. One day our teacher was late in coming because of a heavy snowfall. The school was in an uproar, everybody trying to think up something more rash than his neighbor. Suddenly something fell in my lap. Sure enough it was from my hero. It looked like a piece of crushed chocolate candy. I gave him an adorable smile and started to eat the supposed candy. He had extracted the filling and placed chalk, colored chalk, into it instead.—Chicago Journal.

LOCAL BOY ILL AT DETROIT

A telegram has been received from Allen Rockwell by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Deitzel that their son, Alfred, is in the Detroit, Mich., Osteopathic hospital and had an operation for appendicitis. The letter which followed said that he was doing nicely. A wire is being received daily telling the family of his condition.

Trials of a Good Day

Once there was a Good Day—a Perfectly Good Day, warm, but not too warm, bright and snappy and glorious. It took a walk to receive men's praises and back in their gratitude, and this is what it overheard: "Casper, Minehart—Dear me, we need rain." "Harry Jones—How monotonous this weather is!" "Samuel Sprague—Getting horribly dusty." "Morton Grant—It's so windy today I can't burn my leaves." "Granny Simmons—Heigh-ho! The weather today gives me the spring fever." The Good Day went back home discouraged. "What's the use," it said, "of being a Perfectly Good Day, if this is all that I get for it?" So the next day it rained.—Christian Endeavor World.

Announcement

I wish to announce to the people of Clearfield and vicinity, that I have opened an office in the Room 214, New Moose Temple, and that I will be glad to render service to those who need my help.

I am a graduate of the Akron College of Chiropractic, 4 year resident course, Akron, Ohio, one of the best Chiropractic Colleges in the country. During my attendance there I had a very satisfactory Clinic Practice and came in contact with most all kinds of ailments. In this Clinic there are as many as four hundred patients taken care of daily, and I took care of many of these myself.

If I can be of any help to you I will be glad, and if you come to my office or call me to your home I promise you the very best of service.

Office Hours—10 to 12 A. M.; 2 to 6 P. M.

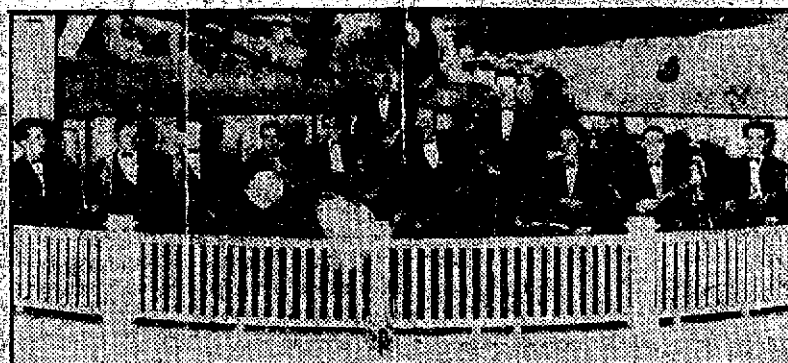

Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday—6 to 8:30.

If I cannot help you I will tell you.

What New York Critics Say About Jan Garber and His Victor Orchestra

Ye reporter for ye METRONOME was wandering around one evening in the wilds of Brooklyn and he happened to notice the name of Jan Garber and his Garber-Davis Orchestra announced on the billboard of the Orpheum Theatre. I was already acquainted with the fact that Garber came into New York with his orchestra several months ago and was an overnight sensation. Naturally interested to hear this aggregation play, I entered the theatre and waited his act.

Garber and his boys surely put out a peppy brand of music. The boys came through with all kinds of amusing antics, and snappy music, introduced a number of novelties and on the evening I attended the theatre, made a decided hit with the audience despite the fact that they were new to the vaudeville game. After the act of the orchestra I saw Jan back stage and had a few minutes conversation with him and some of his men. Jan himself is of small stature and of the extremely wiry type, the kind that makes quick, sharp and decisive movements. After exchanging greetings I asked him "how he did it."

"How I did what?" asked Jan.

"Come to New York almost unannounced and unknown and make such a big hit."

"Well, I don't know myself," replied Jan, "only that everybody here has been wonderful to me."

It may be recalled that the Garber-Davis Orchestra came to New York several months ago, November to be exact, to play for the Talking Machine Men's Ball and before the evening was over, had a number of talking machine men clamoring for their services, ending up with a two years' exclusive contract with the Victor Talking Machine Company. That is how Jan and His Boys started in the big city.

The Garber Davis Orchestra plays at the Midway on the 25th, next Monday Night.

Hear their Victor Records Nos. 19234 19216 and 19352.

They have some snappy numbers which will be on sale about Tuesday or Wednesday.

SINGER COMES HERE IN A LINCOLN

Miss Louise Stallings, lyric soprano and star of the Swarthmore Chautauqua association, and the Lincoln car. Miss Stallings, who appears here in concert, is making her entire tour this season in a Lincoln sedan.

"I feel just as fresh as a daisy and as happy as a lark," said Miss Louise Stallings upon her arrival here today to fulfill her engagement at 8:00 p. m. tonight for the Swarthmore Chautauqua Association. The attractive lyric soprano, and several other artists who are for the association are making the entire trip in a Lincoln Sedan. Miss Stallings is an ardent lover of nature, and declared she was enchanted by the beautiful scenes along the way.

"Travelling in a Lincoln is like taking your cozy parlor with you, and leaving your worries behind," she said. "All the discomforts usually associated with touring are absent, and when the way lies through the glorious country one is free to commune with nature."

Speaking of the country as she has seen it from her sedan the famous lyric soprano said she thinks it is peopled with fairies who plead with the traveller to linger over every pretty scene. "Perhaps it was occasioned by the luxury in which we were travelling, but I never before felt the lure of the country as I have on this trip," Miss Stallings said.

Assisting artists, traveling with Miss Stallings are William Durieux, cellist and Marion Carley, pianist and accompanist. These two rank very high in their chosen art, and serve to balance the program to be given this evening. Also traveling with the party is Dr. George P. Bible, humorous lecturer and entertainer who is scheduled to appear on the afternoon program. Adv.

HOW TO FIND MARS

You can't miss him! If you want to look at Mars, just pick out the brightest object you can find—in the southern sky, an hour or two before midnight, and at midnight (if you are up that late) due south. An hour or two later Mars will be in the southwest. You need no glass to see him. With even a two-inch telescope you can make out the white polar cap.

For the benefit of several inquirers we give herewith a resume of the law governing the training of the dogs on wild game:

"The season for training hunting dogs under the State Game Code opened August 20th and will continue until March 1st, 1925.

"During the period between one hour before sunrise and ten o'clock, on a bright, eastern standard time, dogs when accompanied by and under control of their owner or handler, may be trained upon any game in this State, excepting elk or deer or wild turkey, from the twentieth day of August to the last day of February, except following, Sunday excepted, so long as no firearms usually raised at arms' length and fired from the shoulder are carried and no injury is caused upon said animals or birds. The law does not prohibit the training of dogs on raccoons during the night-time. 'Under control' is defined to mean within call except when actually on a trail or track of game.

A person who shall train a dog to hunt or permit a dog or dogs under his control to hunt or follow upon the land of any small game, common to this State, for training provisions, shall be liable to a fine of ten dollars or imprisonment for six months.

Preparation for the quick and efficient use of the gun has been laid by the Pennsylvania Association of Vi-olunteers, and it is believed that the results of the training will be a more efficient and accurate use of the gun.

The world is rapidly changing, and the struggle for existence which was the ultimate result of the World War, will be a more bitter and desperate struggle for the white and colored races.

The conclusion of Prof. J. Gregory, in his address as President of the Geographical Section of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, at Toronto, Canada, in 1906-1910, there were 100 million people as the world population in 1900, and even if the population should be indefinitely multiplied, there would be standing room for all at the polar regions.

which was held in 1900 has undergone a continuous decline," said Prof. Gregory.

African Negroes are increasing faster than any other people in the world. South America is firmly held by a mixed race and Prof. Gregory thinks it most probable that a similar hybrid people will eventually occupy the southeastern section of the United States with some measure of home rule. The whites can only hope to hold in South Africa certain segregated sections and in Asia only the North and Northwest. White colonists have no chance to permanently occupy land near the overcrowded parts of Asia or accessible to the fast multiplying Negroes of South Africa, he said.

"White merchants may find in these regions profitable trading centers and may for a time rule and administer them, but when white enterprise has subdued the land, built railways and utilized the rivers, the colored men will out the white from all but the few posts that require experts."

But Australia may be completely colonized by the white races, for the speaker believes that the conquest of tropical diseases will enable the tropics to support white civilization. Australian experience has proved that even in the hot and humid climate of Queensland, sugar cane plantations can be more successfully worked by white than by colored labor, although black men can usually stand more heat than white.

Prof. Gregory looks to segregation as the best solution of the race problem, for he does not believe in interbreeding and regards co-residence as incompatible with racial integrity and the highest development of either race. As he puts it, the affectionate, emotional Negro, the docile, diligent Asiatic and the inventive, enterprising European, do not work at their best when associated on masses.

OLYMPICS POSTPONED

On account of the Chautauqua, the "Olympic Meet" scheduled for yesterday at the Athletic Park, for the boys and girls was postponed until next Thursday, August 28th. An all day affair will be arranged including a picnic and according to the present closeness of the various leagues the ties if any will be played off.

Ringling Appeal

people, willing and able to govern themselves, or we are a set of weaklings, unable or unwilling to prevent the bootleggers and their criminal associates from running this country to suit themselves in spite of us. No gang of bootleggers, allied with corrupt politicians, can nullify the Constitution of the United States and defy the people of America, and I for one will not stand for it.

"Our problem is, however, not an easy one. It is made more difficult by the disgraceful failure of the Federal authorities to do their part in law enforcement—a failure which I have repeatedly pointed out, but so far without substantial result. We have no right, however, to dodge our task because it has been made needlessly hard. On the contrary, the failure of the Federal authorities is an additional call to us to vindicate the Constitution of our country in the State where it was born.

"You realize, as I do, that the violation of the Eighteenth Amendment is the fertile source of every kind of crime. It has just led to a most despicable attempt at murder in Washington county. We are fighting this fight to protect our government and our people against the creeping anarchy which has been more assisted and encouraged by the open violation of the Eighteenth Amendment than by all other causes put together.

"The alliance between the bootlegger and the crooked politician is common wherever bootlegging and crooked politics exist. One of the greatest tasks before us is to break that alliance down. There have been no finer examples in American history of the courage and the capacity to bring this great result about than the work of Theodore Roosevelt, as Police Commissioner of New York City, and the work of Smedley D. Butler, as Director of Public Safety of Philadelphia.

"But no peace officer can by himself complete the task of punishing the despicable criminals who, for their own private gain, are attacking the institutions of their country. The punishment of the criminal and the enforcement of the law rests, in the eyes and the courts. It is true that the Governor of this Commonwealth is charged to take care that the laws be faithfully executed, but he has not been granted authority, as has been done in other States, to remove unfaithful law enforcing officials, or to do many things which other Governors can do. The district attorneys and the judges are the key to the situation.

"How completely the result of the effort to enforce the law depends upon you and the judges appears with striking clearness from the comparative figures of arrests by the State Police, and of convictions and discharges in the different counties of the State. Of more than 6000 arrests for violation of the liquor laws made by the State Police during the present administration, more than 9200 were prosecuted in the State Courts. Of these 6200, less than half have been convicted and punished, more than one-sixth have been discharged and more than one-third are still awaiting trial.

"Of the 2700 tried and convicted, about one-third received prison sentences, only 218 received sentences of over six months, and of these only 57 were sent to jail for as much as a year. In other words, in Pennsylvania today the chances are more than 70 to 1 that a man arrested for violation of the liquor laws will not be sent to prison for as much as one year.

"But law enforcement differs as between counties as day from night. In certain counties the convictions secured are six times as many as the discharges—in one county over twelve times as many. In other counties the discharges are twice as many as the convictions, and in one county five times as many.

"These figures show two things. First, that far too many of the criminals who violate the Eighteenth Amendment escape real punishment in this Commonwealth, and, secondly, that the way to remedy this very serious situation is already known and practiced in certain of the counties. It can be done in all, for it has been done in some.

"I will evade no part of my responsibility by putting it on you, and I pledge to each of you the aid of every power at my command. The Attorney General, the State Police, and every other agency of the State which can be of use to you in your work will gladly cooperate. None of us has the slightest desire to encroach upon your field. We are all eager to help whenever you may call upon us.

"We recognize that the local authorities occupy and ought to occupy the first line of defense in this war of greed and appetite against liberty, law and order. You and we are engaged in different branches of the same task. Let us work together to rid our State of the reproach which Federal neglect, bootlegging and corrupt politics have combined to bring upon it.

"I ask your cooperation, first, to secure speedy trial and punishment. That is the greatest deterrent of crime, and it explains why England has in proportion to population but

"Second, to secure prison sentences instead of fines. To a bootlegger or a brewer a fine is merely a kind of license to keep on breaking the law. Nine times out of ten he writes it off as profit and loss, and goes right ahead with his law-breaking.

"Third, to make full use of the injunction to close up places where the law is violated.

"When the police, both State and local, the district attorneys, and the courts work together in full cooperation for speedy and vigorous law enforcement our troubles will be over."

Highly Cited Decoration

The British Victoria cross, given for conspicuous bravery, was instituted in 1856 on the close of the Crimean war, and was given to citizens who had borne arms against the Indian mutineers. In 1911 the decoration was extended to the Indian army. A bar may be awarded for an additional act of bravery. With the decoration is a pension for noncommissioned officers and men of $10 ($20 a year; with an addition of $5 ($25) for each bar.

Old Experience

This happened in England. We had moved into a new neighborhood. I took a walk. I hurried back because it began to get foggy. I became scared when the fog thickened and sat down on a doorstep and cried. The woman of the house took me in and explained my predicament. I didn't know where I lived, so she took me to the police station when the fog lifted. My mother was already there and we were both overjoyed. When we all reached home we learned that it was in the next house to one I had been all the time.—Exchange.

Time

The world's first clock was in the tower of San Eustorgio in Milan, Italy. It was placed there in the year 1329. That's a long time to us who live only a few years, but a short time in the long history of humanity. The invention of the clock was the birth of industrial slavery.—Chicago Post.

Clearfield Continues Its Winning Streak, Taking 7 To 3 Win From Osceola

The Clearfield and Osceola C. & C. League ball clubs met in a league game at the driving park yesterday afternoon for the first time in a month or so and when the last splash of mud had settled on the greensward following Des. Dugan's whirling over the home plate in the 9th and the final Osceolan was put down for the count, "Officer Reilly's score book showed we had 7 runs while the enemy was able to pile up but 3.

Shaulis, McCloskey, and Rowles were absent from the local lineup but that made no difference to Manager Robinson, who is found occasionally with an "ace in the hole" when he least expects it. The resourceful manager, who made Clearfield a real team, simply dug up Olson and Norris from Curwensville and Batchelor, the Glen Richey star, and the old machine started right off "in high" and remained going along at fine speed throughout the game. Olson was behind the bat and Norris in right field. It was their first appearance in local vestments since joining up with the team and both lads certainly made good with the fans.

Scorekeeper Reilly followed the army to Greensburg and must have taken his score book along, because we were unable to locate it for the box score.

"Old Reliable" Rex Fauver did the twirling in his usual capable manner.

Luxuries Are Comparative

When two prisoners were asked to name their reward for submitting to blood transfusions at Sing Sing, one asked for stewed chicken and the other for a bowl of spaghetti. The transfusion was made in an effort to save the life of a fellow prisoner.

Sun God of Ancient Egyptians

Owing to the prevailing solar influence, Egyptian temples, certainly in early times and often later, were oriented east and west so that the rising sun at the equinoxes might light up their dark interiors. Indeed, according to the current Egyptian conception it was the sun god before all others who dwelt in every temple, which was regarded as a small replica of heaven itself. Thus a favorite description of a temple is that it is "the heaven in the interior, while he (the sun god) rises within it."—Dr. A. M. Blackman, in Nature.

Woods Differ Materially

Woods are chosen not only because of their special fitness for a certain piece of furniture, but equally as much because of their accessibility. There were long periods of cabinet making when mahogany was out of vogue, simply because market conditions made it almost impossible to obtain it. Just so, today, mahogany is an accepted highbrow of the furniture world because the makers can rather readily obtain it. Oak, walnut and maple are considered more fit fruit than the chestnut, cedar, cypress and pine of long ago centuries, because they are more adaptable to the cabinet maker's hand. Their ton, beauty of grain, wearing qualities and necessary hardness or softness of the wood determine its use for different types of furniture.

WHEN YOU QUIT CARING

By FLORENCE D. VIES
That scream was music to my ears. I said a mother, in telling about an accident which befell her small son the other day.

No, she wasn't a cruel monster who heard a cry of pain without anguish. She merely knew that when a child is too badly hurt to utter a sound, the chances are against him.

And so the howl of pain, loud and lusty, instantly told her that though badly hurt, the child was a long way from dead.

In one of the week's magazines the story is told of two men who had been caught in a mine disaster. It describes the sufferings of one of the men and then comes this sentence: "Slenk Davis no longer cared."

At that point you may know that things began to look serious. As long as they had strength to care greatly as they had a good deal of hope for their lives. But after the impoverished air began to act as an anesthetic and they quit caring, the end had begun.

Doctors tell us that dying is often that way. It is an easy going off more often than not. The body stops trying, the mind quits caring, the fight is over—the final taking off is easy, not hard.

So when I see people in great trouble

and caring greatly about it, worrying, struggling, suffering, battling against difficulties, even tremendously unhappy, I sometimes take this crumb of comfort that at least they haven't quit caring, so they may fight their way out of difficulty.

Indifference is the beginning of death. That is true in almost any realm. Two lovers will tell you that as long as they both care enough to suffer over a misunderstanding, love still lives. If you are in the midst of trouble today, you might ask yourself if there isn't a pretty lively hope of a way out, just because you still have the capacity to be troubled, because you are alive enough to fight and care.

After all, there are two views to take of worry. The one you most often hear is that it is wasteful and destructive. So it is, if it is simply worry without a plan.

But there is a kind of worry, which is only the capacity to keep caring and keep trying. And in most cases that is a sign of life.

When the body is getting ready to take its leave of life, it quits caring, and when people are just setting out to give up worrying they lose the capacity for suffering.

There are two sides to this business of suffering. As long as we have life enough to suffer a little and to care about it, perhaps there is hope ahead, even for our worst worries.

"Lenin Is Here No Longer. Is It Believable? Is It Imaginable?"

By LEON TROTSKY, in Pravda.

Lenin is here no longer. Lenin is here no longer. These words hurl themselves upon our consciousness like a gigantic cliff falling into the sea. Is it believable? Is it imaginable? Is it comprehensible?

The working people of the world will not be able to grasp it. For the enemy is still very powerful. Long is the road that we still have to go. Unfinished is the great work, the greatest to be mastered in the history of the world; for Lenin was more needed by the working class of the world than perhaps anyone else in the wide world, than perhaps anyone was ever needed in human history.

Lenin is here no longer. But Leninism is here. The immortal part of Lenin, his teaching, his work, his method, his example—all these live in us, in that party that he created, in the first working class state, at whose head he stood.

How are we to go ahead? With the lantern of Leninism in our hands! Shall we find the right road? Through our collective thought we shall find it. And the collective will of the party will help us in doing so.

Your responsibility has increased. Be worthy of your teacher, of your leader! While we are overcome by sorrow, let us close our hearts and our ranks more tightly. Let us close them all for new battles!

Comrades, brothers, Lenin is no longer among us. Farewell, Dytch! Farewell, leader!

An All Around Club Work Girl

(National Crop Improvement Service)
BREADMAKING was the first activity in club work undertaken by Doris Pfister, Minnehaha county, South Dakota. She, with some of her other club members, made a demonstration of breadmaking at the state fair in 1921, and they won first prize, a trip to the International Stock show at Chicago. The next year she specialized in meal planning and was a member of the prize-winning team at the Dakota State fair and at the Interstate at Sioux City. Now having finished school she is preparing herself as a club leader to inspire other little girl club members to become useful home makers.

"Every little girl should enter club work so that she will learn to size herself up in comparison with other girls of her age," says Dennis A. Merriman of the American Steel and Wire Co. "The new generation will set a new high mark."

Not Only a Labor of Love, but a Great, Serious National Responsibility.

By BRIG. GEN. MILTON P. DAVIS, in New York Herald.

HISTORY will bear me out when I say that we are the most warlike nation on earth at the same time the most unimilitary. This is a natural result of our national life—of the individuality of our forefathers, Indian wars and long-lasting Western settlement. We are ever ready to fight at the drop of the hat, but never ready to come under military discipline. Individuality, personal initiative and personal independence are our national characteristics. The statement may be certified by the fact that we have had 104 calls to arms since 1776.

We should grasp the fact that trained manhood is the basic factor of national defense, and that the nation will be secure in proportion as every citizen recognizes his responsibility and does his bit.

National strength is the underlying principle of national growth, and to fulfill the mental, moral and physical fitness of our people are the three graces of better citizenship. We are not greatly interested in ourselves; we are now sitting on the back porch of life contemplating the end of a more or less perfect day. But we are very much interested in the oncoming generations of our nation, and who shall say but that on them rests the future of the world. The chronicles of recent years would certainly so indicate.

World barriers have disappeared. Our daily shopping is done in the international market place, where our own wares predominate. We are the creditor nation of earth. We have five-eighths of all the gold known to exist. We have to look only forty years to see where we shall be forty years hence and to realize in a measure that the responsibilities of our sons will be greater than ours have been. Their preparation is in our hands. It is not only a labor of love, but a great, serious national responsibility.

Man's Mind Is Sometimes Wont to Show Him More Than Seven Watchmen

By RUDYARD KIPLING, in New York World.

BUT one thing that stands outside exaggeration or belittlement, through all changes in shapes of things, and the sounds of words, is the bidding, the guidance that drives a man to own himself and upholds him through his steps on that road. The bidding comes, first, as a beam of light, from that past when man had grown into his present shape, which past, could we question it, would probably refer us to a vast immeasurably remoter still, whose creature, not yet man, felt what it was that it was not well for him to jackal round another brute's kill, even if he went hungry for a while.

It is not such a far cry from that creature howling over his empty stomach in the dark to the heir of all the ages counting over his coppers in front of a cashshop to see if they will run to a full meal—as some few here have had to do, and the principle is the same:

"At any price that I can pay, let me own myself."

And the price is worth paying if you keep what you have bought. For the eternal question still is whether the profit of any concession that a man makes to his tribe, against the light that is in him, outweighs or justifies his desert of that light. A man may apply his independence to what is called worldly advantage and discover too late that he laboriously has made himself dependent on a mass of external conditions for the maintenance of which he sacrificed himself. So he may be festooned with the whole paraphernalia of success and go to his grave a castaway. Some men heed that the risk is worth taking. Others do not. It is to these that I have spoken.

Let the council of thy own heart stand, for there is no man more faithful unto thee than it. For a man's mind is sometimes wont to show him more than seven watchmen who sit above in a high tower.

It Doesn't Work Both Ways

Saved money may some day be spent, but this statement cannot be reversed. Spent money never can be saved—by you!

But the money you spend, which ought to have been saved, will circulate until it reaches the hands of some one who does save—then he will be using the dollar you should have put away.

There's no better habit than the saving habit—and it's easy to acquire once you're started. A dollar will open an account here and will draw 3 per cent interest.

Machinery Guards

The state laws are now very strict on the subject of guarding all belts and other moving machinery parts. We are prepared to take the necessary measurements and make up neat workmanlike metal guards that will conform to the requirements of the Department of Labor and Industry.

We have installed many such guards in our own plant and will be glad to show them to anyone interested.

Improve Quality by Club Markets

High-Grade Products Bring More Money Than the Inferior Grades.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

For several years past South Carolina has had occasion to feel proud of its "Club markets" for rural women, maintained with the help of extension workers. Reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture from the various county home demonstration agents indicate that a large volume of business is done by some of these markets. Some of them are open continuously during the growing season, others two and three days a week, and some on Saturdays only, bringing in an acceptable cash income in return for the activities of the ambitious and hard-working farm women. As many of the markets are run on a 5 per cent commission basis, the total amount of sales is usually known from the commissions received by the market management; but these figures often do not include orders for eggs, poultry, butter, or other produce sent directly from the farm to the customer.

Increased Sales.
To give a few instances: In the Square Deal market at Spartanburg the market sales amounted to $20,313.04, an increase of $5,315.04 over last year's sales. One woman baked and sold 3,129 pounds of cake in nine and one-half months. Many kinds of flowers had a good sale, and those who made sausage meat reported excellent success. The Marlboro Club market doubled its business during 1923, sales amounting to $4,735.95. One member sold $100 worth of cake in one month. The market house has been enlarged to twice its original size.

The home demonstration agent for Greenwood county reports that the club market was revived this year after a lapse of two years. In Darlington county $4,500 worth of produce was sold on commission, and the agent believes that other produce worth at least $1,500, of which there was no record, was also disposed of at the market. In Marion county 15 producers made $1,470.54 through their club market, which has been considered so successful that the chamber of commerce is taking steps to erect a permanent market house for next year. Newberry county market had sales totaling $9,015.93 and additional orders amounting to $2,500.

Improved Quality.
One conspicuous result of these various markets is the continued improvement in the quality of what is offered for sale. It is found that a high-grade butter brings better returns than that of poor quality and that keeping purebred poultry means increased profits in the long run.

Wool Production Shows

Big Increase Over 1922

Wool production last year totaled 223,610,000 pounds, the United States Department of Agriculture estimates. This was an increase of 1,030,000 pounds over 1922 production, due partly to a larger number of sheep and to an increase of three-tenths of a pound in the average fleece weight, which reached 7.5 pounds.

Texas leads the states as a wool producer with 19,700,000 pounds. Wyoming was next with 18,900,000 pounds, Montana 17,775,000 pounds, and Utah 17,210,000 pounds. Idaho produced 15,455,000 pounds; Ohio, 14,131,000 pounds; California, 14,481,000 pounds; and Oregon, 13,200,000 pounds in the leading producing states, wool is mostly a range product, except in Ohio where it is a product of the farm without the range.

The department's first estimate of the ranch clip of 1923, which was for 1922, an overestimate, with 6,532,000 pounds in the ranch clip of 1923 was in Texas for which state the estimate is 7,100,000 pounds.

Eliminate Unprofitable Lines by Farm Records

Of 17 farmers in Knox and Lincoln counties, Missouri, who kept farm account books last year under the direction of their county extension agent, nine have changed their methods of farming to eliminate unprofitable lines, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. These farmers are all keeping accounts again this year and have influenced a number of their neighbors to begin keeping them. They found it required only a few minutes' time each day to keep the accounts. This, they state, is time well spent, for the records are proving valuable as an inventory, for reference, and as a guide in planning, for better and more profitable effort the next season.

Boys' and Girls' Club

Members Learn of Pigs

The pigs or sows and litters belonging to the boys' and girls' club members in West Virginia, which cost about $5,000 when purchased, are now estimated worth over $12,000, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. This includes the holdings of the club members who are feeding one or more pigs by the best known methods, and those of older boys and girls who are learning the latest methods of management of sows and litters, in addition to feeding practices, under the direction of their agricultural extension agents.

Court for confirmation on the 22nd day of September, 1924, unless exceptions thereto be filed.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

NAMED ADJUTANT FOR CALIFORNIA

From keeping records for the University of California, James K. Flak has graduated to keeping records for the California department of the American Legion. Flak was appointed department adjutant on July 1 by Department Commander James K. Collins, upon the resignation of Morton Keaton, who had been department adjutant for three years.

For 17 years Flak was connected with the university. During ten of those years he had been assistant recorder. As assistant chairman of music and drama, he assisted in bringing to the Greek theater at the university many of the world's noted dramatic stars.

From the time of its organization Flak has been active in the work of Berkeley post of the Legion. He is a past commander of the post. He is now, for the second year, holding the chairmanship of the department Americanization committee, where his work has attracted national attention. He has taken a leading part in civic affairs.

When the war came Flak was made a first lieutenant in the signal corps and was assigned to the personnel branch of the aviation service at Washington for about a year. He entered active flying at Bolling field and at March field. He qualified as a pilot and was ready to go overseas when armistice was signed.

Number of Better-Sire Users Reaches Big Total

The systematic manner by which thousands of live stock owners in the United States are improving the quality of their animals is shown by a report put into public by the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture. A total of 12,695 persons is shown to be using pure bred sires exclusively for all losses of breeding animals kept. This result obtained under the "Better Sires—Better Stock" plan involves close to 1,500,000 animals and foals and a vastly larger number of offspring. There are also believed to be many indirect results.

The wide-spread operation of the better-sires activity is shown by an outline of progress during the last three months in 1923 and which is available on request. Applications for participation in the work were received from 693 live stock owners in 27 states and 97 counties. This is an increase of about 50 per cent over the applicants for the previous three months. Persons who thus co-operate with state extension services and with the United States Department of Agriculture by pledging to use pure bred sires exclusively, receive helpful publications a suitable certificate of recognition and a lithographed sign bearing the legend "Pure Bred Sires Exclusive Used on This Farm."

Arsenic in Nature.

It has been found that there are traces of arsenic, not only in human and animal organisms but in certain plants such as the cabbage, turnip and potato, and in wheat, corn and alfalfa. Members of the French Academy of Sciences found also that arsenic is to be encountered in rice, peas, beans, lettuce, celery, asparagus, pumpkin and in most vegetables used as food by man as well as in apples, pears, plums, apricots, grapes and nuts. Since plants undoubtedly get the elements from the soil arsenic must occur far more widely in nature than was at one time supposed.

Comfortable Fowl Must Be Free From Insects

To be comfortable, a hen must be free from mites and lice; she must have plenty of fresh air and water, a well-ventilated house without drafts, and a balanced ration. If the weather turns cold and the house is drafty, the hen will need more food for maintenance, and will draw on what would otherwise have been used for the egg supply.

Records from the sixth egg-laying contest at Mountain Grove, Mo., furnished the following data, as to the amount of food required by hens for maintenance and for egg production:

"The indications are that the hen uses three-fourths of the feed to supply her body and one-fourth to make eggs, and from each one-fourth of feed above maintenance, she makes two eggs which weigh one-fourth of a pound, thus producing a pound of eggs for each pound of feed above maintenance. Data showed that the average hen weighed five pounds, consumed 75 pounds of feed and laid 150 eggs.

"The hens had feed before them at all times, and as the average hen consumed 15 pounds of feed, which is 1,200 ounces, it will be seen that the hen's digestive capacity is 100 ounces per month and that she averaged 74 ounces for her body and from the other 25 ounces she made 12 1/2 eggs, that weighed 25 ounces.

"Although we believe the hen's digestive capacity is about the same at all times, yet she does not produce the same number of eggs each month, which is accounted for by the proportion of feed required for her body at different times. If the weather is pleasant and other conditions right, the hen may use only 50 ounces of feed for her body at different times and make 25 eggs from the other 50 ounces of feed, but if the weather turns cold and her house is not what it should be, so that 80 ounces of feed are required for her body, she can only make five eggs from the other ten ounces, and if the weather changes suddenly so that 110 ounces of feed are needed to support her body, she can and does arrest the eggs which are partly developed, turns the egg material back into her own system and uses it as food, which explains why hens stop laying on short notice following a sudden change in the weather."

Have Regularity in Eating.
Habitual irregularity in eating disturbs digestion greatly and loads the blood with noxious waste products. Such irregularity relates either to the time at which food is eaten or to the quantity and quality taken. Irregularity in either respect leads to irritability, loss of vitality, pessimism, tiredness, headaches, depression and obesity or emaciation, according to particular circumstances. Irrational living confuses the body with a series of emergencies which overtax the powers of our organs. While the body is well equipped for occasional emergencies, nature resents too many insults.

Grouch Makes Few Friends.
Be cheerful! The worst disease with which a man can be afflicted is that of being a continual knocker or grouchy. It gives one a sickening feeling to meet on a pleasant day men who are continually finding fault with every thing and everybody.

Good Time to Move Cess.
It is an easy matter to move bees that have swarmed, because in this state they are full of honey and have lost their memory of the old location.

Davis Fires

Almost in the same breath, Davis bitterly assailed the administration which took up where Wilson left off.

He cited the Teapot Dome Oil scandal, told how the public resources had been squandered; and after oil he said, came the veterans, which resulted in the bartering away of the property of the government and the resources of the Nation; then came prohibition and the denizens of the "little green house" had their opportunity, even the tariff," Davis continued, "afforded an opening to the hosts of privilege for an assault less direct but more devastating to the public pocketbook." He concluded with a contrast of the foreign policy of the Democratic administration with the foreign policy of America today.

"They," said Davis, meaning the Republicans, "present a party made of a President facing in one direction, a Congress in another, the rank and file scattered in between.

"We have a harmonious army, officers and privates, marching to a common end."

Curious Color Changes.

The possibility of a man's eyes changing their color as a result of mental shock or physical ill-treatment has been discussed by surgeons. "It is common knowledge," stated one medical man, "that great physical hardships may suddenly turn the hair white. The loss of color follows on certain chemical changes, due to disturbances of nutrition, taking place in the tiny particles of coloring matter which gave the hair its tint." All babies have blue eyes when they are born. In some infants pigment granules begin to develop in the iris immediately after birth. Thus they become black or brown-eyed. In others no such pigment formation takes place, and the eyes remain their original color throughout life.

Changes in Solar System.

"Each day our relation to the vast universe changes a little. The 'fixed' stars are no more fixed than are the clouds in the sky," writes Ellsworth Huntington, in Harper's Magazine. "Even in 10,000 years their relative positions change appreciably. And in the course of geological history the whole aspect of the heavens has utterly changed time and again. Stars that are now hundreds of light years away may once have been near neighbors of the sun. Sometimes the solar system may have pursued its course far from other stars and almost undisturbed by outside influences. At such times the earth may have enjoyed a mild climate with little change from summer to winter or from latitude to latitude."

Laughing In His Sleeve

"I was told nothing but an operation would help my stomach trouble, and was getting ready for the operation when a friend advised me to try Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. The first dose helped me. I am now as well as ever in my life, and am laughing up my sleeve at the doctors." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.

The Only Revolution in the World That Amounts to a Hill of Beans

By PROF. T. N. CARVER, Harvard University.

The only revolution anywhere in the world that amounts to a hill of beans is taking place in this country now—a peaceful economic revolution by which laborers are rapidly entering the capitalist class.

Very few reformers, especially of the professional sort, know that this revolution is going on. Revolutions sometimes come in that way. The world quietly turns over while the professional reformers are barking at the moon. The real things are accomplished not by people who think they are accomplishing great things; they are accomplished by people who do the day's work and do it well, who function efficiently in society and don't know always that they are revolutionizing the world. And this is that kind of revolution.

The ownership of the factories and the plants by the workers themselves is coming more rapidly in this country than it can possibly come in any other country, and it is coming without any reformer knowing that it is coming. He has not had anything to do with it. It is coming because the ordinary economic forces are putting into the hands of the workers the money with which to buy the plant in which they are working.

Screenings Good for Live Stock

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There are a dozen reasons why screenings should be separated from the farm and fed to live stock, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Screenings are an undesirable farm product, consisting principally of weed seeds, cracked and broken stems, kernels of grain, chaff, broken stems, and straw, dirt and other foreign material, and often constitute 10 to 20 per cent of the grain as it comes from the threshers. They should not, however, be regarded as a waste, but should be turned to valuable account by feeding them to live stock.

Gives Screenings Away.
When screenings are sold with the grain they are classed as dockage, and the grain farmer actually gives them away, because his grain is docked according to the proportion of screenings it contains. This loss to the grain farmer amounts to huge figures when large sections are considered. In 1923, for example, nearly 12,000,000 bushels of screenings were produced, threshed and marketed as dockage in the states of North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota and Montana. The sum of $75,000 was paid by the farmers of these states for threshing their screenings or dockage, and $800,000 was paid to the railroads for hauling it to the terminal markets. Millions of dollars' worth of good feed was thus given away. The grain farmer was the loser.

The average screenings are more nearly equal to oats in composition than any other common feed. Heavy screenings, from which the chaffy material has been removed, are nearly equal to corn, wheat, or barley in the percentages of the various nutrients. More than 2,500,000 pounds have been fed with the wheat screenings that were wasted in the four spring wheat states in 1923 forming the entire grain ration. The resulting increase in weight of the lambs, at 12 cents per pound, would have brought $8,500,000 to the farmers. The spring wheat farmers who cleaned their market wheat on the farm in 1923 gained over 5 cents per bushel as a result of the cleaning.

Can Remove Screenings.
When a farmer who grows little or no grain wants to feed screenings, he must pay high prices for them in a ready-mixed feed, or must purchase them of the elevator or mill that has separated them. The grain farmer, on the other hand, can separate them at the threshing or grainary and feed them as a by-product of his farm. He pays no freight or middleman's commission. By means of a cleaning machine, the screenings can be removed from wheat or rye at a cost of 2 or 3 cents per bushel. A number of these cleaning machines will be in operation in the spring wheat states this year as a result of the work of the United States Department of Agriculture in showing the feeding value of this product for all kinds of live stock and the practicability and economy of separating it and feeding it on the farm.

Inoculating Legumes Is Not Difficult Process

To inoculate legumes procure the dirt from the roots of legumes showing abundant nodule development, taking care that the rays of a bright sun do not strike it (1 quart for each bushel of seed).

For soy beans get dirt from beans, for alfalfa and sweet clover get dirt either from alfalfa or from sweet clover.

Allow the dirt to dry in a sack or a covered box, work it from time to time and finally pulverize it to a complete dust.

Dissolve six ounces of carpenter's glue in one gallon of water. Spread the seed on a tight floor in a room with the windows partly darkened. Sprinkle on the glue solution until the seed is barely moist, stirring thoroughly with a garden rake.

Then sprinkle on slowly the dirt just, stirring continually with the rake until the glue solution has hardened. This will leave every seed covered with the dirt dust carrying the nitrogen-fixing bacteria.

The seed thus prepared may be seeded at once or sacked and set aside for a week or more before seeding. Care should be taken that the seed is uniformly covered as soon as possible following the seeding, as bright sunlight would destroy the inoculation.

Killing Wild Garlic

A successful method of eradicating wild garlic is by spraying with orchard heating oil of waste motor oil, which should be easily procured from garages. This waste oil should be diluted with kerosene until it is thin enough to permit spraying with a small pressure sprayer, but not so thin that it will readily run off the plants. First, strain the oil through several thicknesses of cheesecloth and then apply it as a fine mist.

Care of Leather in Wet Weather Urged

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"The care of your leather equipment at all times, but especially during the wet winter and spring months," is the recommendation of the leather experts of the bureau of chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture. Farmers are the largest users of leather and they are vitally concerned in lengthening its life. Harness, for instance, of the proper weight and grade for the work required, should last fifteen to twenty-five years if it is not allowed to become hard or harsh, but is kept smooth and flexible by frequent washing and oiling, and has been known to last forty years.

The specialists recommend that harness be washed with tepid water and castile soap, rinsed in tepid water, and hung up to dry. While still moist it should be oiled well with neat's-foot oil or castor oil with a mixture of either with wool grease. Driving belts, machine belts and other leather articles used by the farmer will also respond to this preservative treatment with increased serviceability and money will be saved that would otherwise have to be spent in replacing them if neglected.

Grease the children's shoes and water-proof the soles so that dampness cannot enter. Then it will no longer be necessary to "deny" children the pleasures of outdoor life during winter and spring because of the possible danger of colds from wet feet. Formulas for making boots and shoes water-resistant have been prepared by the department.

Discord Is Common.

A piece of furniture that is not in keeping with a room may quite ruin it. Even though the offending piece is costly and good looking, if it is at odds with the other pieces and with the room it should be banished. Perhaps the most usual culprit in this respect is the Morris chair. Many households have one of these left over from an earlier period and place it in the living room with mahogany or walnut

SUITABLE CONTAINERS PROTECT FOOD

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
A new Farmers' Bulletin, 1374, entitled "Care of Food in the Home," has been issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. It points out, in connection with the proper storage of food, that success depends not only on a good storeroom or pantry and an icebox or other means of keeping foods cool, but also on the use of suitable containers.

The choice of proper containers for foods prevents much deterioration and waste. As a general thing each food is best kept in its own closed container. Dry foods may be stored in glass, earthenware, metal, wooden, or specially treated cardboard or paper containers, depending on how carefully they must be protected from air, light and vermin. For moist and watery foods the choice of containers is more limited, for not only must leakage be prevented, but the effect of acids or some metals must be considered. A container that has no

Curwensville's Own Column

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Heller and Mrs. William Young, and J. C. Conway returned yesterday from an auto tour through old Virginia, West Virginia, and Maryland, visiting with Mrs. Heller's brother who has been quite ill, and with other relatives. "But" Heller, despite his bulk of flesh, stood the trip well and enjoyed the outing immensely.

Ed Kelly, employed on the new Anderson Creek bridge, had his left arm mangled yesterday shortly after the noon hour. Dr. Erhard attended the injured man.

T. D. Forsythe, Sr., was injured severely about the head yesterday forenoon while at work in the Maple Run mines near Kelltown. He was coming out with a trip when rock let loose from the roof, catching him on the head, severing the flesh in several places. Dr. Erhard was hurriedly summoned and put a number of stitches in the wounds, stopping the flow of blood.

Howard Ardary, a son of the late James Ardary, passed away on Wednesday evening at the home of his mother in California, after an illness lasting a little over two years. Last winter he spent the time in Curwensville and vicinity, coming here from California. After several months in the hospital he returned to the coast, and had been ill more or less since that time. "Fat" Ardary for a number of years had been an employee of the N. Y. C. Railroad Company, as a reman and later as a pumpman. He was a brother of Jack Ardary of this town, and was aged about 50 years. His body was buried in California.

Miss Lucy Brennett and Leonore are home from the Lock Haven Normal, where they spent the last eight weeks taking special courses in school work. Miss Brennett will teach this winter at Pottersdale, while Miss Leonore will go to Boardman for her third term.

Rev. Mervel Weaver, son of Frank Weaver, this place, is home on a vacation from a ministerial school. He will preach in the Presbyterian church next Sabbath morning and evening.

Leoline Bloom, son of Mrs. J. C. Bloom, South Pine street, is home this week for a visit with his mother and Miss Alice Bloom.

Miss Frances Schorr, who has been away for several weeks, will leave Monday for Braddock, Pa., where she will teach again in the public schools in winter.

Alex Kantar motored up from Pittsburgh Wednesday for a week-end stay with his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Kantar, North Thompson road.

Miss Rae Bixler came up from Williamsport, where she is employed and will spend several days or longer with her mother and sisters.

Mr. Pearl Addelman, who underwent an operation in Clearfield hospital for the removal of abscess, and afterward took pneumonia, is reported as getting along nicely now, and, if no complications take place, will be able to be brought home soon.

Several parties have reported and complained that automobile tires have been stolen while cars were parked over on the Park grounds. There should be a row of electric lights placed all along next the highway in the parking field.

No council meeting was held Wednesday evening because of the absence of all members from the "First Ward" and the fact there was not a quorum present.

There were picnics galore yesterday. One at New Millport, one at Bilger's Rocks, one at the Pee Wee's Nest, and the big Grange picnic in Brady. Curwensville was almost deserted during the afternoon.

The big Y. D. dance held in the new ketnel at the Park grounds yesterday was a great social success in every particular, guests hailing from Clearfield, Punxsy, DuBois, Phillipsburg, DuBois and a dozen smaller towns.

Tuesday evening "Squire" John A. Dale joined in wedlock at the groom's home on North Filbert street, Angelo M. Verrelli and Susi Petrelli.

Wm. Bartoll and family and Mrs. Sandri, after a week's auto tour in New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey and eastern part of Pennsylvania, returned home on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Murphy and son James and Joe Hippis motored to Williamsport on Thursday.

Fox Superior to Wildcat.
A fox has five times as much courage, five times as much intelligence, and five times as much personality as a wildcat, says Herbert Ravenel, Esq., in Harper's. The fox is so clever, so resourceful, that he can afford to be bold and take chances. And, if by chance he is overbold and gets into a tight place, he relies on his wits to get him safely out. The wildcat, on the other hand, is a coward and is afraid of the fox, but also because he has not brains enough to be able to take chances with a fair degree of safety. He survives by avoiding all avoidable hazards, keeping out of dangerous places. But the fox survives in much greater numbers, although he is constantly running unnecessary risks.

Value of Companionship
What an argument in favor of social connections is the observation that by communicating our grief we have less, and by communicating our pleasure we have more.—Greville.

PENNSY GRAMS

Connellsville, Aug. 22—Under the protection of the Red Cross and wearing an identity and direction tag, Catherine Graft, aged 4, has arrived at the home of her grandparents at Tarrs Station after making a journey alone from Lawton, Okla. The child experienced no difficulty in making the trip.

Pittsburg, Aug. 22—Steel plants at the Monongahela Valley are showing increased activity, particularly the Homestead and Duquesne plants of the Carnegie Steel Company. All mills of the big plants are in operation, and the tonnage is showing a marked increase over that of last week.

Philadelphia, Aug. 22—Nearly 100 taxi drivers answered a call for volunteers yesterday when a blood transfusion seemed necessary to save the 11-year-old daughter of Samuel Rueben, President of the Quaker City Cab Company. The operation had to be postponed because of the girl's condition.

Philadelphia—Returning to her home last night, Mrs. Sylvester Pickens found the body of her 16-year-old son, Charles, hanging in the cellar. No motive is known for the suicide.

Philadelphia—Philadelphia will have one of the largest parades in its history on Defense Day, September 12, when 80,000 marchers are expected to be in line.

Philadelphia—An automobile ride he gave two hoppers whom he met in a cafe early this morning proved costly to Martin Foley when the girls turned him into the hands of two bandits who robbed him of $220. One of the bandits was shot through the hand by Thomas Kennedy, a watchman, who witnessed the holdup but both made good their escape.

THE GOODLANDER REUNION

The members of this old Brady township family held their annual reunion in the grove at Luthersburg yesterday. There were present representatives of this well known family from points as far as New Jersey, Indiana and Oklahoma. About one hundred sat down to a well filled table and enjoyed their noonday meal.

The meeting was presided over by C. H. Goodlander, who is the president of the association.

Short addresses were made by several of the visitors, the principal one being by Mr. John H. Allen, of Orange, N. J.

Famous Genre Painter

Maisanter, the celebrated French genre painter, was noted for the microscopic perfection of detail and finish of his pictures. He painted between 450 and 500 of these. About 75 of them are owned in America.

FUNERAL OF MRS. MIGNOT

The remains of Mrs. Ann Mignot, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) Jackson, at Norfolk, Va., on Wednesday last, after a lingering illness as the result of cancer, were brought to her Pine Street home yesterday afternoon. The body was brought to Tyrone by train, arriving there yesterday afternoon at 2:30. Undertaker Leavy met the train there and transferred the remains to his hearse and made the trip home over the mountains.

The funeral was held this morning from St. Francis Catholic Church where a high requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. M. A. Ryan at 10 o'clock. Interment was made in the Catholic cemetery at Frenchville.

Mexico's Largest Pyramid

The pyramid at Cholula, west of the city of Puebla and about 60 miles southeast of Mexico City, is the largest in Mexico. Its base is 400 feet square and the altitude is 200 feet. Its volume is 130,000,000 cubic feet. This pyramid in Mexico has a greater number of cubic feet of masonry, although it is not so high, than the great pyramid in Egypt.

How to build up your Weight

TO be under weight often proves low fighting power in the body. It often means you are minus energy, power, minus red-cells in your blood, ruin to your health, minus vitality. It is serious to be minus, but the moment you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, you begin to become a plus.
That's why S.S.S. since 1888, has meant to thousands of underweight men and women a plus in their strength. Your body fills to the point of power, your flesh becomes firmer, the age lines that come from thinness disappear. You look younger, firmer, happier, and you feel it, too, all over your body. More red-blood-cells! S.S.S. will build them.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Gossip for Tonight's Tea Table

Marilla Edmiston entertained a few girl friends yesterday afternoon in honor of Miss Edwena Brown, who will enter the Pennsylvania Hospital School of Nursing, and Miss Helen Hall of Woodland, who will enter the Clearfield Hospital School of Nursing, in September.

Mr. Shipe and Miss Evonne Shipe and Mrs. Leslie Bowes are spending a week at Gettysburg.

Mr. J. H. Joplin of Lexington, Ky., is visiting his sister, Mrs. A. W. Lee, Jr., on Old Town road.

Mr. S. H. Hindman of Hollywood, Cal., is visiting her sister, Mrs. L. W. Cooper on Second street.

For Slender Women

THIS frock should interest only slender women, since it would be effective only on the curvaceous figure. But given such a figure the result is extremely effective. The collar may be worn closed or open to reveal a V neck. The extreme slenderness of the frock is emphasized by the row of bone buttons which begins under the arm and ends only when the skirt does. The material is shatter green cloth with a subtle finish and the fur used is dyed squirrel.

You'll Like Our Home Made Candies

Whether you are going to spend your week-end out of town or right at home, you'll enjoy eating some of our delicious home-made candies. There is a taste to them that makes one bite invite another.

Your favorite kind is here.

Have You Seen Our New Tailored Frocks For Fall?

If you haven't come in tomorrow. We just received some new ones yesterday. They're smarter than any we've seen this season. You'll love the long slender lines of these frocks, broken only by a bit of cape, a new sleeve or a slight smart flare concealed somewhere in the skirt. The new fabrics are lovely—rich satin finished fabrics, ribbed effects and reps. These are just the kind of frocks you need for street, for business, for class room. You may choose from any of the new Fall Shades.

Silk Fall Frock

THIS silk frock is just the thing for early fall days before it becomes necessary to wear a coat. It is of fall silk with a self pattern and particularly soft finish. The distinctive feature is a lapel of the silk that may be adjusted by means of buttons to be worn open as in the photograph revealing a vest of embroidered organdie, or closed over to form a perfectly plain blouse with a Jenny neckline. A strap trimmed with buttons trims the tailored sleeves.

Lace Gown For Fall

THIS lace costume will have a conspicuous place in the fall and winter wardrobe. If not entirely made of lace it will be combined with soft crepe or chiffon in a delicate color and dyed to match. This costume is carried out entirely in beige color. Very wide banding is employed to form the bodice and the panels in the skirt and the undergarment. A novel feature is the grille that low over the hips, which is made of pleated chiffon. Frequently these lace gowns are made in the form of tunics so that they may be worn over different colored skirts.

Tell This at Dinner.

Patrick, aged three months, sat on his father's knee yelling lustily, while on the other knee sat his twin brother testing the elasticity of his parent's mustache. An elder brother hung on the chair back, while a fourth was indulging in the childish amusement of endeavoring to cut small pieces off the cat's tail. Wife (looking up from a book of interesting facts): "They do say, Barney, that a child is born every time the clock ticks." "Thin bad luck to the haythin that invented clocks!" said Barney.

Popular Proverb

The expression, "Out of the frying pan into the fire," means that in a predicament you are trying to extricate yourself from one evil, you fall into a greater. The ancient Greek used to say, "Out of the smoke, into the flame," and the French say, "Tombe de la poêle dans la braise," that is, to fall from the stove into the hearth.

Salute the Doorman.

They are telling a story at the Arm and Navy club at Washington of a certain officer who is quite near-sighted. It seems the other night that he was to call upon some friends in an apartment house on Sixteenth street, and when he arrived he saw what in the dim light appeared to him to be a tall, general, an admiral or some other high ranking officer, and being mindful that the provisions of making salutes only mandatory on the field had not yet gone into effect, he snapped into military posture and smartly saluted. The salute was answered, but it turned out afterward that the officer in question had given the army sign of recognition to the gorgeously costumed doorman of the apartment house.

FOR LAW OBEDIENCETells District Attorneys
"Either We Are a Self
Race of Weaklings".

COMMENDS BUTLER

By VIN D. SWEENEY
Harrisburg, Aug. 22 (INS).—Calling
upon them to drive bootleggers and
saloon from Pennsylvania, Governor
Pinchot urged the use of three weapons in enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment today as he opened the
law enforcement conference with more
than fifty district attorneys of the State.Speedy trials, jail sentences and the
use of the injunction were the weapons urged upon the district attorneys
in combating the "creeping anarchy
which has been more assisted and encouraged by the open violation of the Eighteenth Amendment than by all
the other causes put together."The Governor stressed the need for jailing the liquor law violators, saying
that a fine was merely a new form of
high license that enabled the law-
breaker to avoid real punishment and
to resume his illicit trade.Charging that the Federal laxity
in enforcing the laws has made the
problem more difficult, the Governor
asked vigorous and coordinated action
on the part of the police, the district
attorneys and the courts to "vindicate
the Constitution of our country in the State where it was born."The Governor's speech to the district attorneys reads:
"The people of this Commonwealth
and of the whole country are face to
face with the vital need for suppres-
sing a dangerous attack upon the Constitution and the laws of the United States. This attack is made from the lowest motives and has behind it every
corrupt and criminal force in every
community. It is the most threatening and most serious of our time, and made out of the very heart of the problem in the defense of our institutions and the enforcement of our laws. To secure your full cooperation in attacking this problem I have invited you to meet with me.""It is the common duty of all of us to support the law. No man has a right to call himself a decent American citizen who does not stand
squarely for law enforcement."

missing today. American war-

Aug. 22. (By Wireless to I. N. S.).— Having completed the longest and
most perilous leg of their great world
flying flight, Lieut. Lowell Smith
and Lieut. Erik Nelson were resting
today at Frederiksdal, Greenland.
They completed the 825 mile jump
from Reykjavik, Iceland, shortly after 8 o'clock last night, taking more than 12 hours for the long hop across the
northernmost fringe of the Atlantic Ocean.Lieut. Locatelli, the Italian flyer,
who left Reykjavik with the Americans,
got separated from them during the
flight. In the early stages of the journey, the Italian was leading.
According to a wireless, Lieut. Nel-
son made a landing of a few minutes
at Skerjavik, 65 miles south of Reykjavik but caught up with his col-
league, Smith, after taking the air
again.Weather conditions were good.
The next jump of the flight will take
them to Labrador, the mainland of the North American continent.The American machines stood the long night admirably. It was the most severe test they had stood, as the
flight was several hundred miles more
than the original plans called for.
During part of the trip the airmen
encountered cross-winds which put a
big strain upon the planes.BODY OF HARRISBURG

Greenland's icy mountains from a rose-

a message of motherly love made that

wonderful, wonderful boy."
"All the world is talking about him
today and my heart is ringing because he's my son. I can hardly wait
for him to get back home. I am
greatly relieved for I was worried
about this last jump they made. Yes,
you can tell everyone I'm the happiest
mother in America and very, very
proud today."Both Mrs. Smith and the Lieuten-

RIVALRY IS KEEN

By H. S. NIGHTINGALE
(Progress Staff Correspondent.)
Greensburg, Pa., Aug. 22.—Green-
burg opened its arms to the Clearfield
Expeditionary Force at 11:30 last evening when the Pennsy special bearing
the "army" and the Legion Band,
which was picked up at Cresson, after
its triumphant and victorious siege of Patton, rolled in to the station.The advance barrage laid down by
the Clearfield Legionnaires was very
effective as there was a great crowd
on hand to see the shock troops from Clearfield and hear the band they had heard so much about. It was only a short march to the Penn Albert hotel,
where the troops are garrisoned. On arrival there most of the boys hit the
hay, but slumber was difficult and
much disturbed.An order has been posted by the
M. P. prohibiting any blowing of
horns until sunrise. Imagine our surprise then when at about four o'clock
this morning a patrol visited our section, rudely placed "Doc" Leopold under arrest and chucked him in the
guard house on a charge of tootin' a
horn before the sun got up the hill. The

Are Organizing Baby
Clinics For This FallState Nurse Miss Florence M. Gracie,
who is in charge of the Tuberculosis Clinic maintained by the State Department of Health in Clearfield, is
assisting in extending the activities of
the health department of the state in Clearfield county.On August 7th Miss Miller, of Harrisburg, organizer for the Child Welfare Department of the State Department of Health, with the assistance of Miss Gracie, held a "Well Baby Clinic" at Ansonville, at which time 36
babies or children up to six years of
age, were present for examination.
clinic from McCartney, Lumber City,
Kerrinor, Berwindale and all the villages surrounding Ansonville. Among
the defects discovered in the tots were
flat feet, enlarged tonsils and ade-
noids, rickets and malnutrition. Some
of the mothers thought their babies in
perfect health until informed of the
actual condition and advised by the
state nurses to take the little people
to their family physicians for treatment.So successful was the clinic and so
great the interest among the mothers
of the region that it was decided to
establish a regular monthly baby clinic at Ansonville. The president or
doctor in charge will be Dr. B. G.
Learn, who is much interested and
who gave invaluable co-operation and
service at the initial clinic. Mrs. B.
G. Learn, Miss Strong and Postmaster
Victor Miller also rendered unselfish
and highly appreciated service to the
Well Baby Clinic at Mahaffey, where

Berlin, Aug. 22.—The decisive battle in the Reichstag over ratification
of the Dawes reparation plan agreement opened today with the bitterest
debate in prospect."Dissolution and a plebiscite," were
the heavy guns brought forward
cellor Marx, Foreign Secretary Stre-
semann, and Dr. Luther, the government's most experienced gunner, led
the fight against the anti-Dawes
forces—German nationalists, ultra-conservatives, and communists—who have become uncommon comrades in a common cause.Marx, Stresemann and Luther maintain that rejection of the Dawes plan
would mean economic collapse for the Ruhr industries, prolongation of the
sufferings of the populations in occupied zones and a bar to resumption of negotiations with the allies.

FIRE AT OLANTA

A dwelling house situated at Olanta
and owned by Harry Cathcart, but occupied by Warren Rhodes and family,
was badly damaged by fire about 8
o'clock last evening. The fire originated on the second floor from an un-
determined origin and had quite a
start when discovered.A party of men returning from the New Millport picnic, happened along
in time to lend valuable aid in subdu-
ing the flames which were confined to
the upper floor.
The loss will amount to several hundred dollars.Philip Robinson, of Atlantic City, is

THE LOSS IS $35,000

The Riverview Works of the Clear-
field Fire Brick Company, located
along the Clearfield-Curwensville State
road, about one-half mile beyond the Clearfield borough line, was burned
down by a fire which started in the
roof of the boiler room about 3:30
o'clock this morning.The "out of town" fire alarm was
sounded when the fire was discovered
and the firemen, who had returned on
their special train from the Patton
convention about one hour previous,
rolled out of bed and were soon upon
the scene.The plant being out of the borough
handicapped the firemen in their efforts to save the building. The steamer was quickly taken to the scene
but on account of the condition of the
river bank near the brick works it
was impossible to get the big machine
close enough to the river to get water.
An effort was made to operate the
engine from the floor of the Riverview
bridge, but the distance to the water
was too great and the pump could not
lift the water.The boiler house, which was frame,
was entirely consumed, as was the entire roof of the main building or plant
proper, while the brick sidewalks were
warped and cracked and considerably
damaged by the heat.The cause of the fire was not exactly
determined but Glen Lannon, one of
the night men who discovered the fire,
is of the opinion it was caused by the
electric wiring as it appeared to have
started under the roof and at a point
where it was impossible for a spark or
fire to get otherwise.The loss will probably reach $35,000,
which is pretty well covered by insurance.The plant employed about 60 men
and had been running full time for
some time. A. D. Bigler, President,
and General Manager of the Clearfield
Brick Company announced this morning that the plant would be rebuilt
at once and workmen are already engaged in clearing away the debris pre-

LANGFORD BOYS DOING WELL

Mine Supt. Thomas Langford was
up from his home at Surveyor today
to see his sons John and Clair, both of whom are patients at the Rowles sanitarium suffering from injuries received in rock falls at the Goshen Coal Company mine at Surveyor one day
last week.Mr. Langford found his boys both improving nicely. Clair has his broken ankle in a cast and will be able to go home as soon as his crushed foot
improves a little more.John, who had his back broken, is
also in a satisfactory condition considering the serious nature of his injuries. His leg muscles began to regular yesterday and Dr. Stewart, who
is caring for him, entertains more
hope for his ultimate complete recov-

ALL HAD FINE TIME

The Clearfield Fire Department arrived home from the Central District
convention at Patton on their special
train this morning about 2:30 o'clock,
a tired but extremely happy bunch,
not over half of whose joy was liqui-
fied. But what can you expect of a real fireman's convention, and that
Patton convention was that.The principal reason for the yard-
wide smiles on the faces of Chief Kreher and his aides was because the
local department swept the deck clean
by capturing every prize they went
after.First and foremost was the grab-
bing off of the largest single prize of
the convention, the $150 first prize in
the band contest, which was decided
ous American Legion Band bringing
home the bacon by finishing away out
in front of all competitors. In addition to winning the band contest, the Clearfield band was also given the $15
cash prize for the snappiest march
and best appearing band in line of parade, during the big parade in the morning.The Elt Hose Company had their fine new combination hose and chemical wagon along and they also romped
away with the $50 cash prize for
the piece of motor fire apparatus coming the longest distance to the convention.Further honors came to the Clear-
field Fire Department, when its veteran member W. B. Holmes, was awarded $10 in cash for being the oldest
fireman in point of actual service.
Bro. Holmes was a member of Company No. 1 when that company was
first organized in September, 1881.He has remained a member of that company through all the intervening
years and is annually chosen to the
position of Steward, and functions on
the job. In addition to being the veteran of the Clearfield Department,
Bro. Holmes has the added distinction
of being the only colored member of
the State Firemen's Association, he
having represented his company as a delegate to the Butler convention several years ago.The drill team of Rescue Hose Company of Curwensville added further
to their reputation as the best drilled
company in Central Pennsylvania by
easily walking away with the $75 first
prize in the prize drill. The Cur-
wensville boys, under the direction of Chief Geo. L. Benner, drilled with the
precision of trained soldiers and easily
outstripped all competitors. They received a continuous ovation along the
route of parade for their splendid
marching formations.The American Legion Band, decked
and groomed for Greensburg, took the Patton people by storm and was the
"big hit" of the convention.
Clearfield firemen were royally
treated at Patton and came home loud
in their praises of Patton firemen and
the townspeople generally.New Star Shines In World

was the unanimous verdict of the
judges that she had the best page for
the week. Miriam Boyd comes along
with a mighty fine page and cops sec-

winner of last week's contest, was
awarded third prize while Fred Liv-

the noise sounded like a dirge being played on a bass horn. That explained it. Prof. Thayer explained that was only Doc snoring, and although sentence had been passed that Doc be shot at sunrise, he was given his liberty and directed to be half shot by sunset, so he couldn't snore tonight.

The convention opened at ten o'clock today after the Legion Band had been given the honor of escorting the state colors to the convention hall. Immediately after the opening formalities, cups for the posts having made the greatest increases in membership were awarded. Commander J. Mitchell Chase of Clearfield, in a neat little speech accepted the cup given to John Lewis Shade Post No. 6, giving the credit for the success of the drive to the members of the Post. Cups were also awarded to Leechburg, Latrobe, Erie and McKeesport.

Erie was selected as the place for the 1925 convention. The tone of the convention points to the acceptance of our man Chase for Commander of the Department of Pennsylvania but rivalry is keen and there is some spirited electioneering from a dozen angles in progress every hour. Chase's principal opponent seems to be Arthur I. Beilin, of Reading, while L. M. Krumm of Washington, Pa., is touted as a compromise candidate. Brig. Gen. Shannon of Lancaster is also in the running. Clearfield is very much in evidence all over the city and local papers this morning spoke in the highest terms of the invading army from the banks of the Susquehanna.

Convention Notes.

"Pop" Wilson's smiling face is very much missed among the civilian attaches at the convention.

The convention itself, is fraught with the usual petty bickerings over details of many things which interest only the Legionnaires.

The casualties during the convention are: Clearfield Army, which has been in the city since the 15th.

The "Punch" trusted goobers were being exposed by the army on the 15th.

The Legion Band is making its usual tour of the city as well as the Legion.

The Army and Night will be the annual frolic tonight in the city.

A S. J. (S. J.) hunker, whose music was heard during the greater portion of the convention, was treated to an ice bath in the water pitcher.

The Clearfield band has again been awarded the honor of playing at the convention.

The local band of the Clearfield has been relieved of the duty of playing at the Clearfield convention.

BASEBALL DOPE

DuBois defeated Philipsburg at Scott Field on Wednesday 7 to 3 and thereby gained a half game on Clearfield, the League leaders. Our own got that half game back by their victory over Osceola and remain three full games in the lead.

Philipsburg makes its first appearance at the local ball park tomorrow in more than a month. Our own are looking for a hard game as Fauver, Cowdrey, Robinson, McCloskey, Rowles and one or two others of the regulars will be out of the lineup because they are attending the Greensburg convention.

Osceola will play here again on Monday.

The Philipsburg team will appear in Clearfield again on next Tuesday, when they play a double-header with the locals. The local management, which is in need of funds, plan to make Tuesday a "booster day" and would like to have all the fans show their appreciation of the kind of ball the locals have played this year by turning out to this game. The first game will start at 2:00 p.m. sharp.

Another Scheme

A feminine voice was heard from the steps of a crowded car: "Oh, get in, dear, some one will give you a seat." The next moment two young women entered. The men in the car were on their mettle. They read papers sternly. Those who had no papers closed their eyes and pretended to slumber. The too-certain women glanced down the car in vain. The car went on for half a mile, and then a man alighted. "There's a seat for one," said the conductor. "Don't take it, dear," said one of the young women, "some man will want it." In the moment of defeat she triumphed.

Long Lapse of Memory

One of the most famous examples of official oversight occurred in connection with Drury Lane theater, where for nearly two centuries soldiers stood on guard outside during each performance. Many thought the guard was there in recognition of Drury Lane as the theater royal, but the real fact was that it was sent there originally by George II. to prevent a threatened riot. The order not being countermanded, the guard was continued until 1894.—London Times.

Generation of Crabs, Etc.

Crabs produce large quantities of eggs, which the female carries about with her attached to her hindmost pair of legs, until they hatch. The details vary much, of course, with the different kinds of crabs. The minute eggs (or spawn) of clams (those of salt water) are found out in early warm weather in great abundance, and at the same season the water near shore is filled with male sperm (milt). Thus by good luck a few eggs meet with the fertilizing particles. These soon "hatch" into a small larva, that swim about for a time, then settle down, acquire shells, and become baby clams, growing to full size and breeding condition in three or four years.

Indians First Anthracite Miners

Indians were the first anthracite miners. In the year 1750 a party of Indians brought a load of coal to a gunsmith near Nazareth, Pa. It is said, and offered it as payment for necessary repairs on their guns. The smith had difficulty in burning this coal in his forge. It was the first anthracite he had ever used. Almost 25 years passed before anthracite was mined in appreciable quantities by white men. The Indians were able to carry all the coal they mined on their backs. In 1920, however, enough coal was produced in the United States to load 12,000,000 50-ton freight cars.

Mrs. Love's Mean Trick

A new boy came to our school and I soon let him know that I was his for the asking. But he never asked. One day our teacher was late in coming because of a heavy snowfall. The school was in an uproar, everybody trying to think up something more rash than his neighbor. Suddenly something fell in my lap. Sure enough it was from my hero. It looked like a piece of crushed chocolate candy. I gave him an adorable smile and started to eat the supposed candy. He had extracted the filling and placed chalk, colored chalk, into it instead.—Chicago Journal.

Trials of a Good Day

Once there was a Good Day—a Perfectly Good Day, warm, but not too warm, bright and snappy and glorious. It took a walk to receive men's praises and back in their gratitude, and this is what it overheard: "Casper Minehart—Dear me, we need rain." "Marry Jones—How monotonous this weather is!" "Samuel Sprague—Getting horribly dusty." "Morton Grant—It's so windy today I can't burn my leaves." "Granny Simmons—Heigh-ho! The weather today gives me the spring fever." The Good Day went back home discouraged. "What's the use," it said, "of being a Perfectly Good Day, if this is all that I get for it?" So the next day it rained.—Christian Endeavor World.

What New York Critics Say About

Jan Garber and His Victor Orchestra

Ye reporter for ye METRONOME was wandering around one evening in the wilds of Brooklyn and he happened to notice the name of Jan Garber and his Garber-Davis Orchestra announced on the billboard of the Orpheum Theatre. I was already acquainted with the fact that Garber came into New York with his orchestra several months ago and was an overnight sensation. Naturally interested to hear this aggregation play, I entered the theatre and waited his act.

Garber and his boys surely put out a peppy brand of music. The boys came through with all kinds of amusing antics, and snappy music, introduced a number of novelties and on the evening I attended the theatre, made a decided hit with the audience despite the fact that they were new to the vaudeville game. After the act of the orchestra I saw Jan back stage and had a few minutes conversation with him and some of his men. Jan himself is of small stature and of the extremely wiry type, the kind that makes quick, sharp and decisive movements. After exchanging greetings I asked him "how he did it." "How I did what?" asked Jan.

"Come to New York almost unannounced and unknown and make such a big hit."

"Well, I don't know myself," replied Jan, "only that everybody here has been wonderful to me."

It may be recalled that the Garber-Davis Orchestra came to New York several months ago, November to be exact, to play for the Talking Machine Men's Ball and before the evening was over, had a number of talking machine men clamoring for their services, ending up with a two years' exclusive contract with the Victor Talking Machine Company. That is how Jan and His Boys started in the big city.

The Garber Davis Orchestra plays at the Midway on the 25th, next Monday Night.

Announcement

I wish to announce to the people of Clearfield and vicinity, that I have opened an office in the Room 214, New Moose Temple, and that I will be glad to render service to those who need my help.

I am a graduate of the Akron College of Chiropractic, 4 year resident course, Akron, Ohio, one of the best Chiropractic Colleges in the country. During my attendance there I had a very satisfactory Clinic Practice and came in contact with most all kinds of ailments. In this Clinic there are as many as four hundred patients taken care of daily, and I took care of many of these myself.

If I can be of any help to you I will be glad, and if you come to my office or call me to your home I promise you the very best of service.

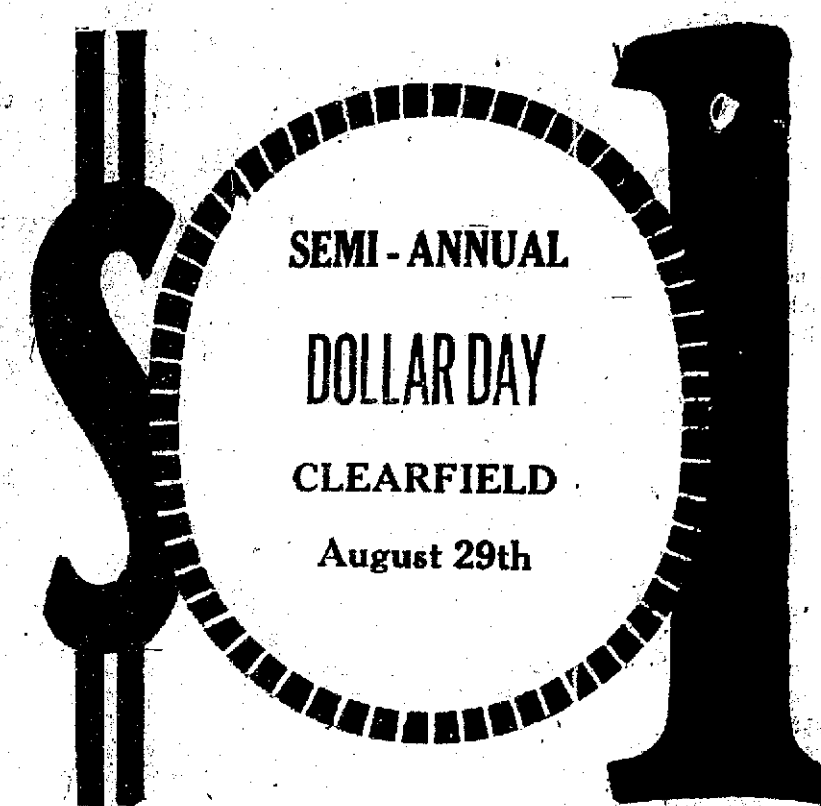

Office Hours—10 to 12 A. M.; 2 to 6 P. M.

Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday—6 to 8:30.

If I cannot help you I will tell you.

SINGER COMES HERE IN A LINCOLN

Miss Louise Stallings, lyric soprano and star of the Swarthmore Chautauqua association, and the Lincoln car. Miss Stallings, who appears here in concert, is making her entire tour this season in a Lincoln sedan.

"I feel just as fresh as a daisy and as happy as a lark," said Miss Louise Stallings upon her arrival here today to fulfill her engagement at 8:00 p. m. tonight for the Swarthmore Chautauqua Association. The attractive lyric soprano, and several other artists who are for the association are making the entire trip in a Lincoln Sedan. Miss Stallings is an ardent lover of nature, and declared she was enchanted by the beautiful scenes along the way.

"Travelling in a Lincoln is like taking your cozy parlor with you, and leaving your worries behind," she said. "All the discomforts usually associated with touring are absent, and when the way lies through the glorious country one is free to commune with nature."

Speaking of the country as she has seen it from her sedan the famous lyric soprano said she thinks it is peopled with fairies who plead with the traveller to linger over every pretty scene. "Perhaps it was occasioned by the luxury in which we were travelling, but I never before felt the lure of the country as I have on this trip," Miss Stallings said.

Assisting artists, traveling with Miss Stallings are William Durieux, cellist and Marion Carley, pianist and accompanist. These two rank very high in their chosen art, and serve to balance the program to be given this evening. Also traveling with the party is Dr. George P. Bible, humorous lecturer and entertainer who is scheduled to appear on the afternoon program. Adv.

WHEN YOU QUIT CARING

By FLORENCE D. VIES
"That scream was music to my ears," said a mother, in telling about an accident which befell her small son the other day.

No, she wasn't a cruel monster who heard a cry of pain without anguish. She merely knew that when a child is too badly hurt to utter a sound, the chances are against him.

And so the howl of pain, loud and lusty, instantly told her that though badly hurt, the child was a long way from dead.

In one of the week's magazines the story is told of two men who had been caught in a mine disaster. It describes the sufferings of one of the men and then comes this sentence: "Slenk Davis no longer cared."

At that point you may know that things began to look serious. As long as they had strength to care greatly as they had a good deal of hope for their lives. But after the impoverished air began to act as an anesthetic and they quit caring, the end had begun.

Doctors tell us that dying is often that way. It is an easy going off more often than not. The body stops trying, the mind quits caring, the fight is over—the final taking off is easy, not hard.

So when I see people in great trouble

and caring greatly about it, worrying, struggling, suffering, battling against difficulties, even tremendously unhappy, I sometimes take this crumb of comfort that at least they haven't quit caring, so they may fight their way out of difficulty.

Indifference is the beginning of death. That is true in almost any realm. Two lovers will tell you that as long as they both care enough to suffer over a misunderstanding, love still lives.

If you are in the midst of trouble today, you might ask yourself if there isn't a pretty lively hope of a way out, just because you still have the capacity to be troubled, because you are alive enough to fight and care.

After all, there are two views to take of worry. The one you most often hear is that it is wasteful and destructive. So it is, if it is simply worry without a plan.

But there is a kind of worry, which is only the capacity to keep caring and keep trying. And in most cases that is a sign of life.

When the body is getting ready to take its leave of life, it quits caring, and when people are just setting out to give up worrying they lose the capacity for suffering.

There are two sides to this business of suffering. As long as we have life enough to suffer a little and to care about it, perhaps there is hope ahead, even for our worst worries.

"Lenin Is Here No Longer. Is It Believable? Is It Imaginable?"

By LEON TROTSKY, in Pravda.

Lenin is here no longer. Lenin is here no longer. These words hurl themselves upon our consciousness like a gigantic cliff falling into the sea. Is it believable? Is it imaginable? Is it comprehensible?

The working people of the world will not be able to grasp it. For the enemy is still very powerful. Long is the road that we still have to go. Unfinished is the great work, the greatest to be mastered in the history of the world; for Lenin was more needed by the working class of the world than perhaps anyone else in the wide world, than perhaps anyone was ever needed in human history.

Lenin is here no longer. But Leninism is here. The immortal part of Lenin, his teaching, his work, his method, his example—all these live in us, in that party that he created, in the first working class state, at whose head he stood.

How are we to go ahead? With the lantern of Leninism in our hands! Shall we find the right road? Through our collective thought we shall find it. And the collective will of the party will help us in doing so.

Your responsibility has increased. Be worthy of your teacher, of your leader! While we are overcome by sorrow, let us close our hearts and our ranks more tightly. Let us close them all for new battles!

Comrades, brothers, Lenin is no longer among us. Farewell, Dytch! Farewell, leader!

An All Around Club Work Girl

By BERT BALL

"National Crop Improvement Service 1" BREADMAKING was the first activity in club work undertaken by Doris Pfister, Minnehaha county, South Dakota. She, with some of her other club members, made a demonstration of breadmaking at the state fair in 1921, and they won first prize, a trip to the International Stock show at Chicago. The next year she specialized in meal planning and was a member of the prize-winning team at the Dakota State fair and at the Interstate at Sioux City. Now having finished school she is preparing herself as a club leader to inspire other little girl club members to become useful home makers.

"Every little girl should enter club work so that she will learn to size herself up in comparison with other girls of her age," says Dennis A. Merriman of the American Steel and Wire Co. "The new generation will set a new high mark."

Not Only a Labor of Love, but a Great, Serious National Responsibility.

By BRIG. GEN. MILTON P. DAVIS, in New York Herald.

HISTORY will bear me out when I say that we are the most warlike nation on earth at the same time the most unimilitary. This is a natural result of our national life—of the individuality of our forefathers, Indian wars and long-lasting Western settlement. We are ever ready to fight at the drop of the hat, but never ready to come under military discipline. Individuality, personal initiative and personal independence are our national characteristics. The statement may be certified by the fact that we have had 104 calls to arms since 1776.

We should grasp the fact that trained manhood is the basic factor of national defense, and that the nation will be secure in proportion as every citizen recognizes his responsibility and does his bit.

National strength is the underlying principle of national growth, and to fulfill the mental, moral and physical fitness of our people are the three graces of better citizenship. We are not greatly interested in ourselves; we are now sitting on the back porch of life contemplating the end of a more or less perfect day. But we are very much interested in the oncoming generations of our nation, and who shall say but that on them rests the future of the world. The chronicles of recent years would certainly so indicate.

World barriers have disappeared. Our daily shopping is done in the international market place, where our own wares predominate. We are the creditor nation of earth. We have five-eighths of all the gold known to exist. We have to look only forty years to see where we shall be forty years hence and to realize in a measure that the responsibilities of our sons will be greater than ours have been. Their preparation is in our hands. It is not only a labor of love, but a great, serious national responsibility.

Man's Mind Is Sometimes Wont to Show Him More Than Seven Watchmen

By RUDYARD KIPLING, in New York World.

BUT one thing that stands outside exaggeration or belittlement, through all changes in shapes of things, and the sounds of words, is the bidding, the guidance that drives a man to own himself and upholds him through his steps on that road. The bidding comes, first, as a beam of light, from that past when man had grown into his present shape, which past, could we question it, would probably refer us to a vast immeasurably remoter still, whose creature, not yet man, felt what it was that it was not well for him to jackal round another brute's kill, even if he went hungry for a while.

It is not such a far cry from that creature howling over his empty stomach in the dark to the heir of all the ages counting over his coppers in front of a cashshop to see if they will run to a full meal—as some few here have had to do, and the principle is the same:

"At any price that I can pay, let me own myself."

And the price is worth paying if you keep what you have bought. For the eternal question still is whether the profit of any concession that a man makes to his tribe, against the light that is in him, outweighs or justifies his desert of that light. A man may apply his independence to what is called worldly advantage and discover too late that he laboriously has made himself dependent on a mass of external conditions for the maintenance of which he sacrificed himself. So he may be festooned with the whole paraphernalia of success and go to his grave a castaway. Some men heed that the risk is worth taking. Others do not. It is to these that I have spoken.

Let the council of thy own heart stand, for there is no man more faithful unto thee than it. For a man's mind is sometimes wont to show him more than seven watchmen who sit above in a high tower.

It Doesn't Work Both Ways

Saved money may some day be spent, but this statement cannot be reversed. Spent money never can be saved—by you!

But the money you spend, which ought to have been saved, will circulate until it reaches the hands of some one who does save—then he will be using the dollar you should have put away.

There's no better habit than the saving habit—and it's easy to acquire once you're started. A dollar will open an account here and will draw 3 per cent interest.

Machinery Guards

The state laws are now very strict on the subject of guarding all belts and other moving machinery parts. We are prepared to take the necessary measurements and make up neat workmanlike metal guards that will conform to the requirements of the Department of Labor and Industry.

We have installed many such guards in our own plant and will be glad to show them to anyone interested.

Mrs. Esther Cathart is ill at her home on Ogden Ave.

Robert B. Reed and wife are enjoying a few days with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Reed, on Old Town Road.

Miss Jane Carmack, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Philip Reed, has returned to her home in Atlanta, Ga., via Baltimore.

Mrs. Helen Phillips Drafford entertained a few friends at her home on Hanna street Thursday afternoon. The time was spent in playing croquet and five hundred. A delicious lunch was served. Mrs. Albert Spikes, nee, Elaine Root, of Altoona, who is the house guest of her aunt, Mrs. H. H. Straw, was a guest.

Earl Phillips has been quite ill, a past week with a case of tonsillitis.

One's Duty to Be Pleasant. Being pleasant is not a matter of mood; it is a duty. The controlled voice, the kind word, the glance of understanding and sympathy may seem like very little things and a rush of more important matters, but they oil the machinery of the world, and make all the wheels turn more smoothly for ourselves and others.

Use for Old Horseshoes. At Trowbridge, England, may be seen an immense pile of old horseshoes which have been collected in small consignments from various blacksmiths. They weigh in the neighborhood of 120 tons, and sometimes the pile even exceeds this amount. These old horseshoes are particularly suitable for melting down for cutlery steel, the metal having been tempered to just the right hardness by the beat of the horses' hoofs and wear and tear of the roads.—Wide World Magazine

Elevator Bell Coward. "If there's anything I loathe," remarked Hunkles, the New York Sun states, "it's an elevator bell coward. An elevator bell coward is one who comes to an elevator door at which you are awaiting the car and presses the bell button. Then if the car is slow in coming he loses his temper and steps again to the bell. This time ringing continuously for some time or at frequent intervals. When the indicator shows the car is nearing the floor he draws back and lets you and your companions be the first to advance, thus giving the impression that you were the angry ringers and sometimes bringing down upon you the wrath of an irate elevator operator."

Talk Not Filling. And one of the hardest things to do in this world is for an orator to play on the emotions of people who want to eat home to dinner.—Dallas News

Sick Room Hint. When patient's mouth becomes dry and parched during the night, a piece of orange held in the mouth from time to time will quench thirst. The orange should be cut into small pieces and put within easy reach of the invalid. It will be easier to handle than a glass of water and is more refreshing.

NOTICE OF SALE OF BONDS OF
The Township of Graham will offer for sale on Monday, Sept. 1st, 1924 at 10 o'clock a. m., $2500.00 face value of bonds of said township. These bonds are five in number, each of the denomination of five hundred dollars, are dated September 1st, 1924, bear interest at the rate of five per cent per annum, payable semi-annually from date, which interest is represented by appropriate attached coupons. They are issued free of all taxes except succession or inheritance taxes which may be levied or assessed by the State. They mature serially, five hundred dollars on September 1st, 1926, and five hundred dollars each year thereafter until the whole are paid.

Sealed proposals for the purchase of the whole or any part of this issue should be addressed to J. L. Ward, Treasurer, Morrisdale, B. D. and will be received up to the hour of sale aforesaid.

Improve Quality by Club Markets

For several years past South Carolina has had occasion to feel proud of its "Club markets" for rural women, maintained with the help of extension workers. Reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture from the various county home demonstration agents indicate that a large volume of business is done by some of these markets. Some of them are open continuously during the growing season, others two and three days a week, and some on Saturdays only, bringing in an acceptable cash income in return for the activities of the ambitious and hard-working farm women. As many of the markets are run on a 5 per cent commission basis, the total amount of sales is usually known from the commissions received by the market management; but these figures often do not include orders for eggs, poultry, butter, or other produce sent directly from the farm to the customer.

Increased Sales.
To give a few instances: In the Square Deal market at Spartansburg the market sales amounted to $20,313.04, an increase of $5,315.04 over last year's sales. One woman baked and sold 3,129 pounds of cake in nine and one-half months. Many kinds of flowers had a good sale, and those who made sausage meat reported excellent success. The Marlboro Club market doubled its business during 1923, sales amounting to $4,735.95. One member sold $100 worth of cake in one month. The market house has been enlarged to twice its original size.

The home demonstration agent for Greenwood county reports that the club market was revived this year after a lapse of two years. In Darlington county $4,500 worth of produce was sold on commission, and the agent believes that other produce worth at least $1,500, of which there was no record, was also disposed of at the market. In Marion county 15 producers made $1,470.54 through their club market, which has been considered so successful that the chamber of commerce is taking steps to erect a permanent market house for next year. Newberry county market had sales totaling $9,015.93 and additional orders amounting to $2,500.

Improved Quality.
One conspicuous result of these various markets is the continued improvement in the quality of what is offered for sale. It is found that a high-grade butter brings better returns than that of poor quality and that keeping purebred poultry means increased profits in the long run.

Wool Production Shows

Big Increase Over 1922

Wool production last year totaled 223,610,000 pounds, the United States Department of Agriculture estimates. This was an increase of 1,030,000 pounds over 1922 production, due partly to a larger number of sheep and to an increase of three-tenths of a pound in the average fleece weight, which reached 7.5 pounds.

Texas leads the states as a wool producer with 19,700,000 pounds. Wyoming was next with 18,900,000 pounds, Montana 17,775,000 pounds, and Utah 17,210,000 pounds. Idaho produced 15,455,000 pounds; Ohio, 14,131,000 pounds; California, 14,481,000 pounds; and Oregon, 13,200,000 pounds in the leading producing states, wool is mostly a range product, except in Ohio where it is a product of the farm without the range.

The department's first estimate of the ranch clip of 1923, which was for 1922, an overestimate, with 6,532,000 pounds in the ranch clip of 1923 was in Texas for which state the estimate is 7,100,000 pounds.

Eliminate Unprofitable Lines by Farm Records

Of 17 farmers in Knox and Lincoln counties, Missouri, who kept farm account books last year under the direction of their county extension agent, nine have changed their methods of farming to eliminate unprofitable lines, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. These farmers are all keeping accounts again this year and have influenced a number of their neighbors to begin keeping them. They found it required only a few minutes' time each day to keep the accounts. This, they state, is time well spent, for the records are proving valuable as an inventory, for reference, and as a guide in planning, for better and more profitable effort the next season.

Boys' and Girls' Club

Members Learn of Pigs

The pigs or sows and litters belonging to the boys' and girls' club members in West Virginia, which cost about $5,000 when purchased, are now estimated worth over $12,000, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. This includes the holdings of the club members who are feeding one or more pigs by the best known methods, and those of older boys and girls who are learning the latest methods of management of sows and litters, in addition to feeding practices, under the direction of their agricultural extension agents.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

NAMED ADJUTANT FOR CALIFORNIA

From keeping records for the University of California, James K. Flak has graduated to keeping records for the California department of the American Legion. Flak was appointed department adjutant on July 1 by Department Commander James K. Collins, upon the resignation of Morton Keaton, who had been department adjutant for three years.

For 17 years Flak was connected with the university. During ten of those years he had been assistant recorder. As assistant chairman of music and drama, he assisted in bringing to the Greek theater at the university many of the world's noted dramatic stars.

From the time of its organization Flak has been active in the work of Berkeley post of the Legion. He is a past commander of the post. He is now, for the second year, holding the chairmanship of the department American Legion committee, where his work has attracted national attention. He has taken a leading part in civic affairs.

When the war came Flak was made a first lieutenant in the signal corps and was assigned to the personnel branch of the aviation service at Washington for about a year. He entered active flying at Bolling field and at March field. He qualified as a pilot and was ready to go overseas when armistice was signed.

Number of Better-Sire Users Reaches Big Total

The systematic manner by which thousands of live stock owners in the United States are improving the quality of their animals is shown by a report put into public by the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture. A total of 12,695 persons is shown to be using pure bred sires exclusively for all losses of breeding animals kept. This result obtained under the "Better Sires—Better Stock" plan involves close to 1,500,000 animals and foals and a vastly larger number of offspring. There are also believed to be many indirect results.

The wide-spread operation of the better-sires activity is shown by an outline of progress during the last three months in 1923 and which I will outline on request. Applications for participation in the work were received from 693 live stock owners in 27 states and 97 counties. This is an increase of about 50 per cent over the applicants for the previous three months. Persons who thus co-operate with state extension services and with the United States Department of Agriculture by pledging to use pure bred sires exclusively, receive helpful publications a suitable certificate of recognition and a lithographed sign bearing the legend "Pure Bred Sires Exclusive Used on This Farm."

Arsenic in Nature.

It has been found that there are traces of arsenic, not only in human and animal organisms but in certain plants such as the cabbage, turnip and potato, and in wheat, corn and alfalfa. Members of the French Academy of Sciences found also that arsenic is to be encountered in rice, peas, beans, lettuce, celery, asparagus, turnip and in most vegetables used as food by man as well as in apples, pears, plums, grapes, and nuts. Since plants undoubtedly get the elements from the soil arsenic must occur far more widely in nature than was at one time supposed.

British Metropolis Ancient City.

London is at least as old as the Roman conquest of Britain (43 A. D.), and there was probably an old British town in the same place before the Romans made an important city of it.

POULTRY

Comfortable Fowl Must Be Free From Insects

To be comfortable, a hen must be free from mites and lice; she must have plenty of fresh air and water, a well-ventilated house without drafts, and a balanced ration. If the weather turns cold and the house is drafty, the hen will need more food for maintenance, and will draw on what would otherwise have been used for the egg supply.

Records from the sixth egg-laying contest at Mountain Grove, Mo., furnished the following data, as to the amount of food required by hens for maintenance and for egg production:

"The indications are that the hen uses three-fourths of the feed to supply her body and one-fourth to make eggs, and from each one-fourth of feed above maintenance, she makes two eggs which weigh one-fourth of a pound, thus producing a pound of eggs for each pound of feed above maintenance. Data showed that the average hen weighed five pounds, consumed 75 pounds of feed and laid 150 eggs.

"The hens had feed before them at all times, and as the average hen consumed 15 pounds of feed, which is 1,200 ounces, it will be seen that the hen's digestive capacity is 100 ounces per month and that she averaged 74 ounces for her body and from the other 25 ounces she made 12 1/2 eggs, that weighed 25 ounces.

"Although we believe the hen's digestive capacity is about the same at all times, yet she does not produce the same number of eggs each month, which is accounted for by the proportion of feed required for her body at different times. If the weather is pleasant and other conditions right, the hen may use only 50 ounces of feed for her body at different times and make 25 eggs from the other 50 ounces of feed, but if the weather turns cold and her house is not what it should be, so that 80 ounces of feed are required for her body, she can only make five eggs from the other ten ounces, and if the weather changes suddenly so that 110 ounces of feed are needed to support her body, she can and does arrest the eggs which are partly developed, turns the egg material back into her own system and uses it as food, which explains why hens stop laying on short notice following a sudden change in the weather."

Have Regularity in Eating.
Habitual irregularity in eating disturbs digestion greatly and loads the blood with noxious waste products. Such irregularity relates either to the time at which food is eaten or to the quantity and quality taken. Irregularity in either respect leads to irritability, loss of vitality, pessimism, tiredness, headaches, depression and obesity or emaciation, according to particular circumstances. Irrational living confuses the body with a series of emergencies which overtax the powers of our organs. While the body is well equipped for occasional emergencies, nature resents too many insults.

Be cheerful! The worst disease with which a man can be afflicted is that of being a continual knocker or grouchy. It gives one a sickening feeling to meet on a pleasant day men who are continually finding fault with every thing and everybody.

Good Time to Move Cess.
It is an easy matter to move bees that have swarmed, because in this state they are full of honey and have lost their memory of the old location.

Almost in the same breath, Davis bitterly assailed the administration which took up where Wilson left off.

He cited the Teapot Dome Oil scandal, told how the public resources had been squandered; and after oil he said, came the veterans, which resulted in the bartering away of the property of the government and the resources of the Nation; then came prohibition and the denizens of the "little green house" had their opportunity, even the tariff," Davis continued, "afforded an opening to the hosts of privilege for an assault less direct but more devastating to the public pocketbook." He concluded with a contrast of the foreign policy of the Democratic administration with the foreign policy of America today.

"They," said Davis, meaning the Republicans, "present a party made of a President facing in one direction, a Congress in another, the rank and file scattered in between.

Curious Color Changes.

The possibility of a man's eyes changing their color as a result of mental shock or physical ill-treatment has been discussed by surgeons. "It is common knowledge," stated one medical man, "that great physical hardships may suddenly turn the hair white. The loss of color follows on certain chemical changes, due to disturbances of nutrition, taking place in the tiny particles of coloring matter which gave the hair its tint." All babies have blue eyes when they are born. In some infants pigment granules begin to develop in the iris immediately after birth. Thus they become black or brown-eyed. In others no such pigment formation takes place, and the eyes remain their original color throughout life.

Changes in Solar System.

"Each day our relation to the vast universe changes a little. The 'fixed' stars are no more fixed than are the clouds in the sky," writes Ellsworth Huntington, in Harper's Magazine. "Even in 10,000 years their relative positions change appreciably. And in the course of geological history the whole aspect of the heavens has utterly changed time and again. Stars that are now hundreds of light years away may once have been near neighbors of the sun. Sometimes the solar system may have pursued its course far from other stars and almost undisturbed by outside influences. At such times the earth may have enjoyed a mild climate with little change from summer to winter or from latitude to latitude."

Laughing In His Sleeve

"I was told nothing but an operation would help my stomach trouble, and was getting ready for the operation when a friend advised me to try Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. The first dose helped me. I am now as well as ever in my life, and am laughing up my sleeve at the doctors." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.

The Only Revolution in the World That Amounts to a Hill of Beans

By PROF. T. N. CARVER, Harvard University.

The only revolution anywhere in the world that amounts to a hill of beans is taking place in this country now—a peaceful economic revolution by which laborers are rapidly entering the capitalist class.

Very few reformers, especially of the professional sort, know that this revolution is going on. Revolutions sometimes come in that way. The world quietly turns over while the professional reformers are barking at the moon. The real things are accomplished not by people who think they are accomplishing great things; they are accomplished by people who do the day's work and do it well, who function efficiently in society and don't know always that they are revolutionizing the world. And this is that kind of revolution.

The ownership of the factories and the plants by the workers themselves is coming more rapidly in this country than it can possibly come in any other country, and it is coming without any reformer knowing that it is coming. He has not had anything to do with it. It is coming because the ordinary economic forces are putting into the hands of the workers the money with which to buy the plant in which they are working.

Screenings Good for Live Stock

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There are a dozen reasons why screenings should be separated from the farm and fed to live stock, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Screenings are an undesirable farm product, consisting principally of weed seeds, cracked and broken stems, kernels of grain, chaff, broken stems, and straw, dirt and other foreign material, and often constitute 10 to 20 per cent of the grain as it comes from the threshers. They should not, however, be regarded as a waste, but should be turned to valuable account by feeding them to live stock.

Gives Screenings Away.
When screenings are sold with the grain they are classed as dockage, and the grain farmer actually gives them away, because his grain is docked according to the proportion of screenings it contains. This loss to the grain farmer amounts to huge figures when large sections are considered. In 1923, for example, nearly 12,000,000 bushels of screenings were produced, threshed and marketed as dockage in the states of North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota and Montana. The sum of $75,000 was paid by the farmers of these states for threshing their screenings or dockage, and $800,000 was paid to the railroads for hauling it to the terminal markets. Millions of dollars' worth of good feed was thus given away. The grain farmer was the loser.

The average screenings are more nearly equal to oats in composition than any other common feed. Heavy screenings, from which the chaff material has been removed, are nearly equal to corn, wheat, or barley in the percentages of the various nutrients. More than 2,500,000 bushels could have been fed with the wheat screenings that were wasted in the four spring wheat states in 1923 forming the entire grain ration. The resulting increase in weight of the lambs, at 12 cents per pound, would have brought $8,500,000 to the farmers. The spring wheat farmers who cleaned their market wheat on the farm in 1923 gained over 5 cents per bushel as a result of the cleaning.

When a farmer who grows little or no grain wants to feed screenings, he must pay high prices for them in a ready-mixed feed, or must purchase them of the elevator or mill that has separated them. The grain farmer, on the other hand, can separate them at the threshing or grainary and feed them as a by-product of his farm. He pays no freight or middleman's commission. By means of a cleaning machine, the screenings can be removed from wheat or rye at a cost of 2 or 3 cents per bushel. A number of these cleaning machines will be in operation in the spring wheat states this year as a result of the work of the United States Department of Agriculture in showing the feeding value of this product for all kinds of live stock and the practicability and economy of separating it and feeding it on the farm.

Inoculating Legumes Is Not Difficult Process

To inoculate legumes procure the dirt from the roots of legumes showing abundant nodule development, taking care that the rays of a bright sun do not strike it (1 quart for each bushel of seed).

For soy beans get dirt from beans, for alfalfa and sweet clover get dirt either from alfalfa or from sweet clover.

Allow the dirt to dry in a sack or a covered box, work it from time to time and finally pulverize it to a complete dust.

Dissolve six ounces of carpenter's glue in one gallon of water. Spread the seed on a tight floor in a room with the windows partly darkened. Sprinkle on the glue solution until the seed is barely moist, stirring thoroughly with a garden rake.

Then sprinkle on slowly the dirt just, stirring continually with the rake until the glue solution has hardened. This will leave every seed covered with the dirt dust carrying the nitrogen-fixing bacteria.

The seed thus prepared may be seeded at once or sacked and set aside for a week or more before seeding. Care should be taken that the seed is uniformly covered as soon as possible following the seeding, as bright sunlight would destroy the inoculation.

Killing Wild Garlic

A successful method of eradicating wild garlic is by spraying with orchard heating oil of waste motor oil, which should be easily procured from garages. This waste oil should be diluted with kerosene until it is thin enough to permit spraying with a small pressure sprayer, but not so thin that it will readily run off the plants. First, strain the oil through several thicknesses of cheesecloth and then apply it as a fine mist.

Home Golf

A man was languidly beating a rug with a golf club when his wife came out and said: "That doesn't call for a pair of clubs. Use your driver."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Care of Leather in Wet Weather Urged

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"The care of your leather equipment at all times, but especially during the wet winter and spring months," is the recommendation of the leather experts of the bureau of chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture. Farmers are the largest users of leather and they are vitally concerned in lengthening its life. Harness, for instance, of the proper weight and grade for the work required, should last fifteen to twenty-five years if it is not allowed to become hard or harsh, but is kept smooth and flexible by frequent washing and oiling, and has been known to last forty years.

The specialists recommend that harness be washed with tepid water and castile soap, rinsed in tepid water, and hung up to dry. While still moist it should be oiled well with neat's-foot oil or castor oil with a mixture of either with wool grease. Driving belts, machine belts and other leather articles used by the farmer will also respond to this preservative treatment with increased serviceability and money will be saved that would otherwise have to be spent in replacing them if neglected.

Grease the children's shoes and water-proof the soles so that dampness cannot enter. Then it will no longer be necessary to "deny" children the pleasures of outdoor life during winter and spring because of the possible danger of colds from wet feet. Formulas for making boots and shoes water-resistant have been prepared by the department.

Discord Is Common.

A piece of furniture that is not in keeping with a room may quite ruin it. Even though the offending piece is costly and good looking, if it is at odds with the other pieces and with the room it should be banished. Perhaps the most usual culprit in this respect is the Morris chair. Many households have one of these left over from an earlier period and place it in the living room with mahogany or walnut

SUITABLE CONTAINERS PROTECT FOOD

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
A new Farmers' Bulletin, 1374, entitled "Care of Food in the Home," has been issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. It points out, in connection with the proper storage of food, that success depends not only on a good storeroom or pantry and an icebox or other means of keeping foods cool, but also on the use of suitable containers.

The choice of proper containers for foods prevents much deterioration and waste. As a general thing each food is best kept in its own closed container. Dry foods may be stored in glass, earthenware, metal, wooden, or specially treated cardboard or paper containers, depending on how carefully they must be protected from air, light and vermin. For moist and watery foods the choice of containers is more limited, for not only must leakage be prevented, but the effect of acids or some metals must be considered. A container that has no

Curwensville's Own Column

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Heller and Mrs. William Young, and J. C. Conway returned yesterday from an auto tour through old Virginia, West Virginia, and Maryland, visiting with Mrs. Heller's brother who has been quite ill, and with other relatives. "But" Heller, despite his bulk of flesh, stood the trip well and enjoyed the outing immensely.

Ed Kelly, employed on the new Anderson Creek bridge, had his left arm mangled yesterday shortly after the noon hour. Dr. Erhard attended the injured man.

T. D. Forsythe, Sr., was injured severely about the head yesterday forenoon while at work in the Maple Run mines near Kellytown. He was coming out with a trip when rock let loose from the roof, catching him on the head, severing the flesh in several places. Dr. Erhard was hurriedly summoned and put a number of stitches in the wounds, stopping the flow of blood.

Howard Ardary, a son of the late James Ardary, passed away on Wednesday evening at the home of his mother in California, after an illness lasting a little over two years. Last winter he spent the time in Curwensville and vicinity, coming here from California. After several months in the hospital he returned to the coast, and had been ill more or less since that time. "Fat" Ardary for a number of years had been an employee of the N. Y. C. Railroad Company, as a reman and later as a pumpman. He was a brother of Jack Ardary of this town, and was aged about 50 years. His body was buried in California.

Miss Lucy Brennett and Leonore are home from the Lock Haven normal, where they spent the last eight weeks taking special courses in school work. Miss Brennett will teach this winter at Pottersdale, while Miss Leonore will go to Boardman for her third term.

Rev. Mervel Weaver, son of Frank Weaver, this place, is home on a vacation from a ministerial school. He will preach in the Presbyterian church next Sabbath morning and evening.

Leoline Bloom, son of Mrs. J. C. Bloom, South Pine street, is home this week for a visit with his mother and Miss Alice Bloom.

Miss Frances Schorr, who has been away for several weeks, will leave Monday for Braddock, Pa., where she will teach again in the public schools in winter.

Alex Kantar motored up from Pittsburgh Wednesday for a week-end stay with his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Kantar, North Thompson road.

Miss Rae Bixler came up from Williamsport, where she is employed and will spend several days or longer with her mother and sisters.

Mr. Pearl Addelman, who underwent an operation in Clearfield hospital for the removal of abscess, and afterward took pneumonia, is reported as getting along nicely now, and, if no complications take place, will be able to be brought home soon.

Several parties have reported and complained that automobile tires have been stolen while cars were parked over on the Park grounds. There should be a row of electric lights placed all along next the highway in the parking field.

No council meeting was held Wednesday evening because of the absence of all members from the "First Ward" and the fact there was not a quorum present.

There were picnics galore yesterday. One at New Millport, one at Bilger's Rocks, one at the Pee Wee's Nest, and the big Grange picnic in Brady. Curwensville was almost deserted during the afternoon.

The big Y. D. dance held in the new kitchen at the Park grounds yesterday was a great social success in every particular, guests hailing from Clearfield, Punxsy, DuBois, Philipsburg, DuBois and a dozen smaller towns.

Tuesday evening "Squire" John A. Dale joined in wedlock at the groom's home on North Filbert street, Angelo M. Verrelli and Susi Pertelli.

Wm. Bartoll and family and Mrs. Sandri, after a week's auto tour in New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey and eastern part of Pennsylvania, returned home on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Murphy and son James and Joe Hippis motored to Williamsport on Thursday.

If You Fall, She'll Clean It.
The comments made by ladies upon pines often shows a curious unawareness of the true virtue and function of that soothing implement. Said Titania, when she exhibited our magnificent new bear, "That's lovely! How nice it smells. Now do try to keep it clean."—New York Evening Post.

Fox Superior to Wildcat.
A fox has five times as much courage, five times as much intelligence, and five times as much personality as a wildcat, says Herbert Ravenel Lash in Harper's. The fox is so clever, so resourceful, that he can afford to be bold and take chances. And, if by chance he is overbold and gets into a tight place, he relies on his wits to get him safely out. The wildcat, on the other hand, is a coward and is afraid of the risk, but also because he has not brains enough to be able to take chances with a fair degree of safety. He survives by avoiding all avoidable hazards, keeping out of dangerous places. But the fox survives in much greater numbers, although he is constantly running unnecessary risks.

Value of Companionship.
What an argument in favor of social connections is the observation that by communicating our grief we have less, and by communicating our pleasure we have more.—Greville.

PENNSY GRAMS

Connellsville, Aug. 22—Under the protection of the Red Cross and wearing an identity and direction tag, Catherine Graft, aged 4, has arrived at the home of her grandparents at Tarrs Station after making a journey alone from Lawton, Okla. The child experienced no difficulty in making the trip.

Pittsburg, Aug. 22—Steel plants of the Monongahela Valley are showing increased activity, particularly the Homestead and Duquesne plants of the Carnegie Steel Company. All mills of the big plants are in operation, and the tonnage is showing a marked increase over that of last week.

Philadelphia, Aug. 22—Nearly 100 taxi drivers answered a call for volunteers yesterday when a blood transfusion seemed necessary to save the 11-year-old daughter of Samuel Rueben, President of the Quaker City Cab Company. The operation had to be postponed because of the girl's condition.

Philadelphia—Returning to her home last night, Mrs. Sylvester Pickens found the body of her 16-year-old son, Charles, hanging in the cellar. No motive is known for the suicide.

Philadelphia—Philadelphia will have one of the largest parades in its history on Defense Day, September 12, when 80,000 marchers are expected to be in line.

Philadelphia—An automobile ride he gave two hoppers whom he met in a cafe early this morning proved costly to Martin Foley when the girls turned him into the hands of two bandits who robbed him of $220. One of the bandits was shot through the hand by Thomas Kennedy, a watchman, who witnessed the holdup but both made good their escape.

THE GOODLANDER REUNION

The members of this old Brady township family held their annual reunion in the grove at Luthersburg yesterday. There were present representatives of this well known family from points as far as New Jersey, Indiana and Oklahoma. About one hundred sat down to a well filled table and enjoyed their noonday meal.

The meeting was presided over by C. H. Goodlander, who is the president of the association.

Short addresses were made by several of the visitors, the principal one being by Mr. John H. Allen, of Orange, N. J.

Famous Genre Painter

Maisanter, the celebrated French genre painter, was noted for the microscopic perfection of detail and finish of his pictures. He painted between 450 and 500 of these. About 75 of them are owned in America.

FUNERAL OF MRS. MIGNOT

The remains of Mrs. Ann Mignot, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) Jackson, at Norfolk, Va., on Wednesday last, after a lingering illness as the result of cancer, were brought to her Pine Street home yesterday afternoon. The body was brought to Tyrone by train, arriving there yesterday afternoon at 2:30. Undertaker Leavy met the train there and transferred the remains to his hearse and made the trip home over the mountains.

The funeral was held this morning from St. Francis Catholic Church where a high requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. M. A. Ryan at 10 o'clock. Interment was made in the Catholic cemetery at Frenchville.

Mexico's Largest Pyramid

The pyramid at Cholula, west of the city of Puebla and about 60 miles southeast of Mexico City, is the largest in Mexico. Its base is 400 feet square and the altitude is 200 feet. Its volume is 130,000,000 cubic feet. This pyramid in Mexico has a greater number of cubic feet of masonry, although it is not so high, than the great pyramid in Egypt.

How to build up your Weight

TO be under weight often proves low fighting power in the body. It often means you are minus energy, power, minus red-cells in your blood, minus vitality. It is serious to be minus, but the moment you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, you begin to become a plus.
That's why S.S.S. since 1888, has meant to thousands of underweight men and women a plus in their strength. Your body fills to the point of power, your flesh becomes firmer, the age lines that come from thinness disappear. You look younger, firmer, happier, and you feel it, too, all over your body. More red-blood-cells! S.S.S. will build them!

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

For Slender Women

Have You Seen Our New Tailored Frocks For Fall?

If you haven't come in tomorrow. We just received some new ones yesterday. They're smarter than any we've seen this season. You'll love the long slender lines of these frocks, broken only by a bit of cape, a new sleeve or a slight smart flare concealed somewhere in the skirt. The new fabrics are lovely—rich satin finished fabrics, ribbed effects and reps. These are just the kind of frocks you need for street, for business, for class room. You may choose from any of the new Fall Shades.

Silk Fall Frock

THIS silk frock is just the thing for early fall days before it becomes necessary to wear a coat. It is of fine silk with a self pattern and particularly soft finish. The distinctive feature is a lapel of the silk that may be adjusted by means of buttons to be worn open as in the photograph revealing a vest of embroidered organdie, or closed over to form a perfectly plain blouse with a Jenny neckline. A strap trimmed with buttons trims the tailored sleeves.

Tell This at Dinner.

Patrick, aged three months, sat on his father's knee yelling lustily, while on the other knee sat his twin brother testing the elasticity of his parent's mustache. An elder brother hung on the chair back, while a fourth was indulging in the childish amusement of endeavoring to cut small pieces off the cat's tail. Wife (looking up from a book of interesting facts): "They do say, Barney, that a child is born every time the clock ticks." "Thin bad luck to the haythin that invented clocks!" said Barney.

Sharp Reminder.

When poison of any kind is brought into the house it is a good plan to immediately run two common pins through the cork, opposite each other, with the pin points extending about an eighth of an inch past the heads on each side. The prick of the pin gives warning by day or night the instant the cork is touched and proves an efficient safeguard against mishaps.

Sense of Humor.

A sense of humor is a very fine thing. It lifts one over life's rough places as it were, with a leap and a bound and lands one in safety on the farther bank of the swollen and threatening stream. You keep young if you possess it; the twinkle in your eye is a sign that old age is far from you yet, whatever your years may be. All the same, a sense of humor is a gift which must be displayed with discretion. The trouble is that, with most of us, it stops working when we need it most—that is, when things go wrong with our own affairs. The man who can smile when this happens is a hero—Philadelphia Record.

Popular Proverb

The expression, "Out of the frying pan into the fire," means that in a predicament one is forced to choose between two evils, and that the one chosen is the lesser of the two. The ancient Greek used to say, "Out of the smoke, into the flame," and the French say, "Tombe de la poêle dans la braise," that is, to fall from the stove into the hearth.

Salute the Doorman.

They are telling a story at the Arm and Navy club at Washington of a certain officer who is quite near-sighted. It seems the other night that he was to call upon some friends in an apartment house on Sixteenth street, and when he arrived he saw what in the dim light appeared to him to be a tall, general, an admiral or some other high ranking officer, and being mindful that the provisions of making salutes only mandatory on the field had not yet gone into effect, he snapped into military posture and smartly saluted. The salute was answered, but it turned out afterward that the officer in question had given the army sign of recognition to the gorgeously costumed doorman of the apartment house.
